SUMMARY.

The Germans in the centre of their attack have advanced 12½ miles.

They have crossed the Vesle River between Soissons and Reims, capturing Braine and Fismes.

The British have fallen back south of the heights of Saint Thierry.

The French are retiring upon the eastern outskirts of Soissons.

Unofficial sources state that the enemy has captured Soissons.

A German communique states that 25,000 prisoners, including one British General and one French General, have been taken.

It is expected that the German advance will be definitely stopped within 48 hours.

British and French military circles take a calm view of the new battle.

They express the opinion that General Foch will not be induced to weaken the forces at his command.

French reserves have begun to arrive on the Aisne front. It is believed the worst is over.

The arrival of the French reserves is now altering the character of the battle.

The enemy's advance, it is expected, will be blocked as it was at Noyon and Montdidier.

Sir Douglas Haig reports that Franco-British counter-attacks re-established their line east of Dickebusch Lake, in the Ypres sector.

The Allied line was maintained at all points.

A French communique states that the enemy made fresh efforts to accentuate his drive southwards and towards Soissons.

The French on the left counter-attacked vigorously, and stopped the German advance.

The battle is developing with sustained violence on the line of the Vesle, which the Germans crossed at several points.

West of Montdidier the Americans, supported by tanks, brilliantly carried the salient and village of Cantigny.

German counter-attacks against Cantigny completely failed.

A later French communique states that the Germans have reached the outskirts of Soissons.

A German message states that the Crown Prince's attack south of Laon was successful, the Franco-British divisions being defeated.

The "Deutsche Volkszeitung" has published the terms of the Austro-German treaty, which consists of seven clauses.

The first clause provides for the formation of a close military alliance for 25 years.

Both parties pledge themselves to employ the entire strength of their peoples for military purposes.

They are to have their armies fully prepared to enter an eventual future conflict at maximum strength.

Only thus, it is declared, can a future war be of brief duration.

Clause 2 ends: "Had the armies of both Allies been in this condition in 1914 the war would have ended long ago."

The transport Leasowe Castle, 9737 tons, was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean.

The Labour Council last night carried Mr. Judd's anti-war motion by 101 votes to 75.

The exportation of salt from the Commonwealth has been prohibited.

The business paper for the annual conference of the Australian Labour party, to be opened on Saturday, is a lengthy one.

Labour leaders believe a settlement of the party's attitude in regard to the war will be reached.

A firm of biscuit manufacturers at Camperdown has put off 80 hands owing to a shortage of tinplates.

There is a serious shortage of white pine in New Zealand.

The Dominion Government has been urged to take over the control of the pine forests, to protect the butter industry.

At the inquiry into the prices of boots and shoes, a retired boot manufacturer admitted that he had made shoddy goods.

This was necessary, he explained, owing to the demand for cheap boots and shoes.

Thirty-five recruits were accepted at the Central Depot on Wednesday. The country returns added 52 men.

A recruiting meeting was held in Market-street yesterday, and stirring appeals for men were made.

"Surely you must now realise that the Empire is in great danger," said one speaker.

Efforts are being made to organise a "strong post" in the city, to assist in welcoming home returning soldiers.

The "marches to freedom" in the suburban centres are attracting considerable public attention.

About 13 volunteers "followed the drum" during the Darlinghurst to Park-street march on Wednesday night.

Sixteen recruits were added to the "March to Freedom" ranks at Singleton.

The total number of volunteers who offered themselves during the march was 178, of whom 132 are in khaki and 46 are deferred.

The last rally in connection with the Kitchener Flag Fund will be held in Martin-place this afternoon.

Mr. Ball informed a deputation that the railway extension from Tarana to Oberon would be considered by the Cabinet.

Another contingent of invalid soldiers will disembark to-morrow morning.

A scheme has been outlined for the use of Graythwaite, North Sydney, as a hostel for severe cases of sickness and wounds.

Sixty-two vessels have been withdrawn from service in Australian waters since the war began.

The number of vessels now employed in the interstate trade is 67.

All the time-tables in the oversea service have been suspended.

The Federal Government does not intend to introduce industrial legislation during the present sitting.

A daring robbery was perpetrated at the William-street branch of the English, Scottish, and Australian Bank yesterday.

A man entered the bank, grabbed some bundles of notes, and got away with about £300.

Mr. J. G. Macdonald, a Queensland explorer of the Sixties, has died in Brisbane at the age of 85.

Seventy-one emergency grain elevators are being erected in the country districts.

Between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 bushels storage will be ready before the commencement of next harvest.

The Department of Agriculture has been conducting experiment plots in the wheat districts in connection with fallowing.

The Government has decided to make an advance to farmers of 5s per acre on land fallowed this year.

Butter is to be advanced another 4s 8d per cwt on Tuesday, making the wholesale price 168s 8d.

Stocks of cheese were light yesterday, and prices were very firm. Bacon was fairly plentiful.

The values of sheep at the Homebush sales were lower, the fall being between 1s and 2s, and in places more.

The cattle forward were of good quality. The market was irregular, prices at the close being 15/ to 30/ lower.

There was a quiet market on the Stock Exchange yesterday, but firm prices ruled.

War Loan securities figured prominently in the business done, and increasing rates were realised.

A quieter but somewhat stronger tone marked the market for mining shares.

In the oil market an active business was done in turpentine and resin.

Grocery lines were quiet at the rates ruling early in the week. Some changes were made in mis[illegible] lines.

WARRIGAL COAT SWEATERS, FOR WARMTH DURING WINTER.
An Overcoat serves well for the street or for driving, but on the many occasions when one does not want to be burdened with a coat—on the cold mornings and evenings at home, on the walking tour, fishing, shooting, golfing—then, particularly, is the Coat Sweater appreciated. It gives warmth without weight; without discomfort; and there is no need to displace any other garment, because these Sweaters slip on and off easily like a coat.
The registered "Warrigal" label attached to every Sweater signifies Peapes-quality and genuine Australian manufacture.
COAT SWEATERS, buttoning to neck, with turnover double collar; 2 patch pockets outside. Navy, Grey, Brown, and White. Men's 17/6, O.S. 18/6, Ex. O.S. 19/6.
VEST SWEATERS, Open neck like a vest. Linen collar and tie may be worn. Style otherwise as above, also colours. Men's 16/6, O.S. 17/6, Ex. O.S. 18/6.
Both styles are also available in Boys' sizes.
Peapes pay postage. Please state chest measurement; also colour required.

ANOTHER BIG JOB PURCHASE OF HIGH-GRADE

CREPES DE CHINE & SILKS.

These comprise all the newest and most wanted shades, being a stock of WAREHOUSE ENDS, and ranging in length from 3 to 10 yards, and marked according to quality as under, only in the shades specified under each price.

In justice to yourself, DON'T FAIL TO COME TO WINN'S EARLY—THIS (FRIDAY) MORNING.

CREPES DE CHINE, WORTH 6/11, FOR 4/11.

No. 1.—This Silk is medium weight, 40 inches wide, and can be had in Lime, Grey, Amethyst, Red, Maize, or Putty shades only. Worth 6/11. SPECIAL (while it lasts), 4/11 yard.

CREPE DE CHINE, WORTH 7/11, FOR 5/11.

No. 2.—This Silk is slightly heavier weight than No. 1, and has a nice finish and better assortment of shades as V. Rose, Sky, Cream, Brown, Putty, Lime, Saxe, Navy, Grey, Pink, or Rose. Worth 7/11. SPECIAL (while it lasts), 5/11 yard.

CREPES DE CHINE, WORTH 8/11 AND 9/11, FOR 6/11.

No. 3.—In this lot there are two heavy-weight, richly-finished Crepes de Chine, 40 inches wide, in White, Black, Gold, Brown, Lime, Vieux Rose, Pink Putty, and Navy shades only. Worth 8/11 and 9/11.
SPECIAL (while it lasts), 6/11 yard.
27-inch Jap. Satin; this is extensively used now, and it washes like silk, which is an advantage. It can be had in Pink, Brown, Black, Grey, Navy, or Saxe; it's worth 3/11.
SPECIAL (while it lasts), 2/11 yard.
Just a few pieces of Novelty Tussore Silks with coin spots of various colours. Worth 4/11 yard.
SPECIAL (while it lasts), 3/11 yard.
As there are only limited quantities of the above lines of Crepes de Chine and Silks, and in many cases short lengths, it would be to your advantage to be in early.

SNOW'S.

MERRILY ON GOES SNOW'S SHOWROOM CLEARAWAY.

THE GOOD NEWS SPREADS.

The phenomenal rush of shoppers to Snow's during the past two days has set bargain buyers talking, and thus the good news spreads.
There has been a tremendous Clearaway of Bargains, at prices hitherto unheard of, so that buyers felt they were back to pre-war prices.
But though the sales have been so phenomenal, and rapidly as the bargains have moved out, thanks to Snow's far-sighted policy of buying well in advance there are still THOUSANDS OF BARGAINS, AND THE NEXT EIGHT DAYS WILL BE JUST AS BRISK, IF NOT BRISKER, THAN THE FIRST TWO.

AND THE LOW PRICES AT SNOW'S CLEARAWAY ARE MIGHTY ELOQUENT.

A 10/6 BLOUSE CLEARAWAY.

SNOW'S JAP. SILK BLOUSES.

This is a Striped Heavy-weight Jap. Silk Blouse, in light grounds, with Navy, Vieux Rose Green, and Gold Stripes. Made in shirt style, with roll, flat, or high collars; gathered full on shoulder yoke, throw-open revers, front fastening pearl buttons; some have envelope pockets, finished full length sleeves, and turned back cuffs. Usual price of this blouse, 14/11.
WHILE THEY LAST .... 10/6.

CREPE DE CHINE BLOUSE. SNOW'S 15/11 CLEARAWAY.
There are also some Ninon Blouses amongst these. They are displayed on a table just as you step out of the lift on the Second Floor. They are in all good colourings, and designed in very dainty styles, some with square necks, others with high silk collars; finished with hand-embroidered touches. The prices of these range from 25/ to 35/.
ALL CLEARAWAYS AT 15/11.

WHITE JAP. SILK BLOUSES.

SNOW'S 16/11 CLEARAWAY.
Here again we have three styles in Heavy-weight White Jap. Silk Blouses. They are something particularly choice, as the fronts are embroidered with dainty spray. Collar may be worn high or low; all seams hemstitched; set in full length sleeve, with turn-back cuff finish; these were selling readily at 22/6, at which price they were very attractive.
TO-DAY AT SNOW'S CLEARAWAY, 16/11.

FLORAL SILK BLOUSES. SNOW'S GUINEA CLEARAWAY.
This is a line the like of which you have probably never seen before at the price and are very unlikely to see again. They are Blouses in very dainty Floral Silk Net lined throughout with White Ninon; dainty flat collar of white Georgette, with strappings of same. Hand finishings; shoulder yoke and sleeves set in with hemstitchings; dainty cuff finish on sleeves. Ordinary Price, 39/11.
CLEARING TO-DAY AT 21/.

FOUR SKIRT STYLES AT SNOW'S.

CLEARAWAY PRICE, 8/11.
There is no need to describe the whole four, as almost everybody is sure to come to see them. But to give country patrons a chance to buy, we would like to emphasise the fact that these four styles of skirts are in Wool Tweed, in colours of Browns, Heather mixture, and Greys.
Two of the styles have tabs on hips, finished self buttons; there are two with pockets, one with tab coming over pocket, and fastening self buttons; another with plain patch pocket, and smartly belted. Size 24 to 30 inch waists. Selling readily all the season at 15/11.
GOING FAST AT SNOW'S, 8/11.

THE HOME OF GOOD VALUES.

A HOSTESS IS KNOWN BY THE DINNERS SHE SERVES.

And the dinners are judged by the little appetising delicacies which come as a welcome change from the more solid foods.

A great favourite is—

which possesses an indescribable piquancy and flavour, found in no other similar cheese. The maturing of "Rex" Luncheon cheese occupies a much longer period than is usually allowed. It is this care in the manufacture which gives the superior flavour.

Taken after meals "Rex" Cheese is a valuable aid to digestion.

It keeps well when opened, and spreads like butter—thus sandwich-making becomes easy.

"Rex" Luncheon Cheese is sold by all Grocers in soldierless tins. Order some to-day. See "Rex" Brand, and refuse all "just-as-goods."

WE CAN CLEAN YOUR TABLE COVERS & CURTAINS.

Every housewife knows that Table Covers and curtains which are soiled look dingy and unattractive. The best way to preserve their pristine freshness is to have them cleaned periodically by the Rogers process.

We clean and dress Curtains of all descriptions, from the most delicate lace work to the heavy Tapestry Drapings. Table Covers in Union Damask or Tapestry can be renovated to look like new. If they are badly faded we can dye them a different colour for a very moderate amount.

You will be surprised what you can accomplish at the cost of a few shillings.

PITT-STREET HORDERNS

ARE SHOWING

THE LATEST MODELS IN

WARNER'S RUSTPROOF CORSETS.

It is hardly necessary to say much more, for these Corsets have for years had the unqualified approval of well-dressed women.

YET THERE IS MORE TO SAY.

Another season's experience has added much to the knowledge of the designers of Warner's Corsets, much that finds expression in snappier styles, better values, and more flawless comfort.

THERE IS NEVER A TIRED FEELING WITH A WARNER.

The Corset that pinches and constrains, the Corset that is ready and eager to offer up your health and comfort as a sacrifice to Appearance—that Corset carries in its train the tired look, the pinched expression, the general air of putting up with life instead of enjoying it, that is an utter stranger to the wearer of a

WELL-FITTING WARNER.

WHY should a fashionable corset tend to make the wearer look old before her time?
THAT IS A QUESTION that the Warner designers asked—and answered—many years ago.
THERE IS NO REASON IN THE WIDE WORLD for such a thing, if only the Corsets are designed on natural lines.

HENCE THE EVOLUTION

OF THE

HEALTHY WARNER.

Easy, supple grace is the natural inheritance of every normal woman, and a truly designed corset will support and assist and develop her figure on those lines.

THE LINES OF FASHION VARY FROM YEAR TO YEAR,

but never go beyond the possibility of easy and healthy and comfortable attainment in a skilfully and scientifically prepared Corset.

EVERY FIGURE IS CATERED FOR IN WARNER'S NEW MODELS.
Let us show late styles that will especially become YOU.

PEPSIN IS THE

that converts your food and enables it to be utilised as nourishment for the body.

WHITE WINGS MALTO PEPSIN BREAKFAST MEAL

contains Pepsined Malt, thus making digestion easy. If you have to avoid eating ordinary porridge because it is troublesome to digest try this modern breakfast meal.

It is both tonic and food, because one grain of Pepsined Malt will digest 2000 grains of other farinaceous products.

Ask for White Wings Breakfast Meal, and take no other, as it is the only meal of its kind. If your grocer does not stock it, ask him to get you a packet.

Don't be misled by the cost. Although is moderately priced, it is equal in quality to the most expensive baking powders manufactured.

Owing to a correct mixing of the choicest ingredients—uniform results in cooking are always obtained when Ireland's Baking Powder is used.

We guarantee Ireland's Baking Powder without reservation or restriction. Try it to-day, and if it displeases you return it at once to your grocer, and he will refund the purchase price. Your grocer stocks it. Ask for Ireland's Baking Powder.

BEN and JOHN FULLER'S DRAMATIC CO.,
GEORGE CROSS AT LIEUT. DRAKE.

In introducing this play of gallant men and daring deeds, Messrs. Ben and John Fuller are confident that it will realise here the huge success it has attained in other parts. Prior arrangements will however, compel a limited season, and "The Sailor's Wedding" can be produced for POSITIVELY THREE WEEKS ONLY.

THE BEST TEA IS THE CHEAPEST TEA IF FRESH.

"Ophir" Tea

IF TEA GOES STALE IN YOUR PANTRY, IN THE GROCER'S SHOP, OR IN THE WAREHOUSE, IT HAS LOST ITS GOODNESS (STALE TEA IS AS FALSE ECONOMY AS IS CHEAP TEA). GOOD, FRESH TEA IS A DELICIOUS STIMULANT "AT HOME," AND FOR YOUR DISCRIMINATION EVERY FRESH PACKET OF

"OPHIR" TEA HAS ON IT A NUMBER OR THE DATE.

THIS IS NECESSARY AT PRESENT, BECAUSE OF SCARES, SPECULATIONS, ETC. YOU WOULD GET A SURPRISE IF EVERYONE DATED THEIR TEA. YOU WILL PAY A FAIR PRICE FOR "OPHIR" TEA—YOUR HEALTH DESERVES THAT—BUT ITS ECONOMIC RICHNESS AND FLAVOUR WILL REPAY.

ALL LEADING GROCERS HAVE IT FRESH. IF SOME DO NOT STOCK IT, THERE IS A REASON, AND THAT REASON IS NOT TO YOUR BENEFIT.

INSIST ON "OPHIR" TEA.

IT IS FRESH FROM ALL GROCERS WHO WISH TO PLEASE.

DISPEL DYSPEPSIA.

If you are feeling heavy and depressed, lacking in energy and out of condition—though this may not have occurred to you—dyspepsia may have a great deal to do with it. Summon to your assistance the world-renowned remedy—Beecham's Pills. This wonderful medicine will thoroughly fortify your digestive powers, enable you to throw off depression and rid yourself of such distressing and enervating ailments as biliousness, headache, constipation, flatulence, heartburn, and other digestive troubles. Many people have found that if they

TAKE

Beecham's Pills they are rarely troubled with ailments or low spirits. Beecham's Pills restore the organs of digestion when out of order; they also maintain them in a condition of high efficiency. As soon as any symptoms of digestive derangement make their appearance Beecham's Pills should be taken. There is no reason why people should continue to suffer the inconvenience and pain arising from such disorders when a perfectly reliable remedy can be obtained so readily and economically as

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Sold everywhere in boxes, labelled, price 10½d (56 pills), 1/1½ (56 pills), and 2/9 (168 pills).

MORANGORELL STATION.

A VERDICT REVERSED.

Farmer v Honan and same v Dunne.

Judgment was delivered in cross-appeals in two actions between Andrew Joseph Farmer, plaintiff, against Michael Honan, defendant, in one case, and R. A. Dunne, defendant in the other, heard by Mr. Justice Sly and a jury last term. The principal facts were that negotiations were entered into by Honan with Farmer for the purchase from the latter of a station property known as Morangorell, in the Temora district. Dunne was a property agent, living in Melbourne, and the defendants alleged that he was the co-agent of a Mr. Moore, for the plaintiff, for the sale of the place. The negotiations eventually resulted in a meeting in Junee between Farmer, Honan, Dunne, and Moore, when a certain discussion took place about the purchase of the property by Honan, who had previously inspected it. A letter was drawn up in the form of an offer of the property by Farmer to Honan, dated January 12, expressed as being till January 18. On January 18 Honan handed to Dunne, in Melbourne, a deposit cheque for £1600, at the same time instructing him not to part with it until his (Honan's) solicitors were satisfied as to the contract and title. Dunne took the cheque and gave a receipt for it, signed by himself, as agent for the vendor, and then wired and wrote to Moore, in Sydney, saying that he had received this cheque from Honan, and asking that particulars of title and contract be forwarded. That wire and letter, together with the letter containing the offer by Farmer of January 12, were relied upon by the plaintiff as constituting a memorandum of contract under the Statute of Frauds. A draft contract was prepared in Sydney, the vendors then appearing as the Mutual Investments, Limited, of which Farmer was the managing director. This contract passed between the solicitors for the parties, and underwent several alterations, and finally Honan repudiated it on the ground that certain misrepresentations had been made to him.

Their Honors upheld the appeal in Honan's case, and confirmed the verdict given in Dunne's favour. The judgment of Mr. Justice Pring dealt with the main argument as to whether the letter and telegram constituted a contract. His Honor quoted the judgment in Winn v Bull, in which Jessel, Master of the Rolls, after pointing out that contracts for the purchase of land should contain something more than could be found in the short and meagre form of an ordinary letter, went on to say that when it was not expressly stated to be subject to a formal contract it became a question of construction whether the parties intended that the terms agreed on should merely be put into form, or whether they should be subject to a new agreement, the terms of which were not expressed in detail. His Honor said he thought it was clear that both parties contemplated that a formal contract should be drawn up, not merely registering the terms of the offer, which, taken alone, would be unworkable. The subsequent conduct of the parties confirmed this view. In his opinion the offer and the acceptance both clearly indicated that the parties had in mind the preparation of a contract defining their rights and liabilities in the event of a sale. So far, therefore, as this part of the case was concerned, he thought the verdict for the plaintiff should be set aside and a verdict entered for the defendant. The jury having been told that there was a binding contract for the sale of the station, naturally came to the conclusion that Honan should pay for the plant, etc., as stipulated in the offer of January 12. If they had been told there was no binding contract his Honor could not imagine that they would have found that there was a separate and independent sale of the plant. In truth the so-called sale and delivery were nothing more than a transaction, which depended for its binding power on the completion of a contract for the sale of the station. On both grounds, in his Honor's opinion, the verdict for the plaintiff in Farmer v Honan should be set aside and a verdict entered for the defendant, plaintiff to pay the costs of the motion. In Farmer v Dunne the motion to set aside the verdict for the defendant must be dismissed with costs.

Separate judgments were delivered by Mr. Justice Gordon and Mr. Justice Ferguson, who held substantially the same views.

Judgment was entered accordingly.

Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. Alec Thomson (instructed by Messrs. Fisher and Macansh) appeared for Honan, appellant in the first case, and Dunne, respondent in the second case; and Mr. Broomfield and Mr. Pilcher (instructed by Messrs. Prichard Bassett and Co.) for Andrew Joseph Farmer.

RAILWAY APPEAL BOARD.

Ex parte Malone.—Application for Mandamus.

Mr. Watt (instructed by Messrs. McCoy and McCoy) made an application on behalf of Walter Malone for a writ of mandamus directed to Ralph Vivian Hodgson, Frederick Meikeljohn, and Frederick Alexander Walker, members of the Appeal Board constituted under the Railway (Appeal) Act of 1916, to the Railway Commissioners and to John Doran, to compel the first three members of the board to proceed with the hearing of an appeal. The facts alleged shortly were that the appellant had been a conductor, and was graded as a conductor in the service of the tramways. During the currency of the big strike Malone had been on sick leave and was ill. On resuming duty he was promoted to the higher grade of a driver. He took up those duties, and was in that employment for some time, when he was degraded by the head of his branch, Mr. Doran, being put back to the grade of conductor. No reason was given at the time, but subsequently the applicant found out that it had been alleged he had been a "pro-striker," and was to be considered as having taken part in the strike. The Act under which the proceedings were taken provides that a man may be degraded by the head of his department for misconduct or breach of rules and regulations, these being the only reasons upon which that deprivation of rank is authorised. Malone lodged his appeal, and then received an intimation that some objection had been taken to the jurisdiction of the board, and the board apparently considered the question of jurisdiction. It was objected that the board on the occasion had before it a letter from the Railway Commissioners—who would have been one of the parties in the appeal—stating that they were satisfied that Malone was a "pro-striker," and was therefore not entitled to the same consideration as other railway men who had resumed duty, not having been connected with the strike. A finding was given by the Chairman of the board, stating that an error had been made in his promotion, which was corrected by removing him from the higher appointment. The board held, therefore, that it had no jurisdiction to proceed with the inquiry. Mr. Walker, one of the members of the board, dissented from that decision. The point taken by counsel for the applicant was that there must have been an allegation of misconduct to account for the degrading, and therefore the applicant was entitled to a hearing before the Appeal Board.

A rule nisi was granted, returnable on the first day of next term.

APPEAL DISMISSED.

Humphreys and other v M'Leish.

The appeal of the defendant in an action between Sarah Matilda Humphreys and others against David M'Leish, tried before his Honor Judge Bevan, at the Albury District Court, which had been interrupted for the purpose of enabling the Judge at the trial to inform the Full Court of the nature of his decisions on points raised during the hearing, was resumed. The plaintiff had sued to recover £100 compensation for alleged waste and conversion of certain land which had been leased to the defendant, complaining of waste and conversion after the termination of the tenure, and also breach of agreement. After reading Judge Bevan's report and further hearing Mr. Maxwell on behalf of the appellant the Court dismissed the appeal with costs.

Mr. Maxwell (instructed by Messrs. Webster and M'Lean, agents for Messrs. Fleming and Henderson, of Albury) appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Milner Stephen (instructed by Messrs. Mackenzie and Mackenzie, agents for Mr. Bellbridge, of Albury) for the respondents.

(Before Sir William Cullen, C.J., Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

IS LIMESTONE A RESERVED MINERAL?

Hardell v The Commonwealth of Australia.

This matter came before the Full Court on a motion for a new trial of an action tried before Mr. Justice Ferguson last year without a jury, the action in question being a disputed claim for compensation in respect of the resumption of land under the Federal Lands Acquisition Act for a stated public purpose in the proclamation. A certain ruling was given as to the plaintiff's right to limestone in the subject area, and following upon that ruling the course was taken, as the ruling was fundamental, and affected the question of compensation in a very vital degree, of allowing his Honor to enter a verdict formally for the amount of the sum of the Government's offer, leaving it open to the plaintiff to object to the ruling and its result. Three substantial questions arose on the appeal—firstly, whether his Honor had any jurisdiction whatever or any right to inquire into the question, which was determined by him on an objection taken by Mr. Knox as to whether limestone could be looked at as constituting an element of value in the land. The appellant contended that that was not a question which his Honor should have considered, that according to the view of the High Court expressed in the case of Harris v the Minister for Public Works, the duty of the Court on a trial of an issue of this kind was to determine the value of the physical thing taken, leaving the question of the rights of the parties to the compensation money when it was determined to the right tribunal under the proper machinery. His Honor held that Mr. Knox was justified in the contention that he was entitled to show the plaintiffs had no title to the minerals on that inquiry, the result being that if the matter were decided upon that ruling his Honor would only fix compensation as to portion of the land. At the trial the land grant issued in 1886 was put in evidence, in which there was a general reservation of all minerals. The appellant contended firstly that whether or not the Crown grant reserved the limestone as a mineral in the land was either a question of construction or a matter of evidence; and, secondly, if it did not reserve limestone, and if limestone was not an excepted substance from the grant, was the land the subject of the grant, subject to mining for defined minerals under the Mining Act of 1906? In other words, assuming that the Crown did not except out of the grant to the plaintiff the limestone, was the plaintiff's right to the limestone confiscated in fact by the Mining Act of 1906? In short, the contention was that the excepted minerals must be determined as those regarded as minerals in the vernacular of the commercial and mining world at the time of the issue of the grant.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., Mr. Pike and Mr. Ferguson (instructed by Messrs. Parish and Stephen) appeared for the plaintiff, appellant; and Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. Alec Thomson (instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, for the Commonwealth Government.

BINGHAM v BINGHAM.

This suit remains part heard.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

BANKRUPT RELEASED.

Last April his Honor ordered a writ of attachment to issue against Emmanuel Askew for failure to file a statement of accounts. The writ lay in the Court for a fortnight, and it was not to be enforced if the bankrupt complied with the order to file accounts. Not having done so, the bankrupt was arrested on the 2nd inst., and imprisoned in the debtors' prison at Long Bay.

Mr. Fanker, who appeared for the bankrupt, now applied for the latter's release on the ground that he had undertaken to furnish any requisite information to the official assignee. His Honor directed the release of the bankrupt, who was debited with £14 10s costs of the proceedings.

SINGLE MEETINGS.

Re Wong Yang ("Sun Lee and Co."). Adjourned to Forbes, before the District Registrar.

Re Arthur Henry James Clarke. The examination was concluded.

Re James Buckingham. Adjourned to the 12th prox.

Re D. Champar and Francis Walter Thomson. Adjourned to the 12th prox.

Re Maud Gray. The examination was concluded.

Re Robert William Lenehan. Bankrupt was publicly examined by Mr. W. H. Palmer, official assignee. The bankrupt deposed that he was admitted as a solicitor of the Supreme Court about 25 years ago. For two and a half years he was in the South African war. During the last three years he had been engaged in military duties here. His wife is alive, and he has six children. Directly the war broke out he went to the Liverpool camp as commandant of the Light Horse. He remained till October last, when he was demobilised. He still commanded the 4th Brigade Field Artillery, for which he got about £30. He had never been bankrupt before. He had two sons at the war, one died, and the other had just returned. The bankrupt stated that the cause of his bankruptcy was his inability to pay costs in the divorce suit, Guiot v Guiot, in which he was co-respondent. The taxed costs amounted to about £850. He had mortgaged his life policy of £200, and also a legacy of £300. Tulloch, a grazier, of Scone, had a judgment against witness in connection with a shipment of horses to Java. He had business with Vivian G. Meddows, whom he owed £759 17s 6d. The examination was adjourned to the 6th prox.

EXAMINATION, SECTION 30.

Re Arthur John Legge. Adjourned to the 6th prox.

Re James Watson. The examination was closed.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

FOREMEN STEVEDORES.

An application was made on behalf of the Sydney Foremen Stevedores' Association for a variation of the Transport Group, No. 24 (Foremen Stevedores, Port Jackson) Board's award. Under the definition clause of the award, which it was sought to vary, the duties of foremen stevedores as described included the engaging of labour required for loading and unloading vessels in harbour. Since the 1917 strike the duty of engaging hands has not been part of the stevedores' work, the employers now taking the labour required from the bureau established and maintained by certain shipping companies. It was complained that certain employers were attempting to take advantage of the altered conditions by offering lower wages to foremen stevedores than those provided by the award. His Honor granted the variation asked for, which was framed to protect the interests of the class affected by the award. Mr. Henwood appeared for the applicant union, and Mr. Dillon for the Interstate and Coastal Steamship Association.

(Before his Honor Judge Rolin.)

GASMAKERS' AWARD.

In connection with the application by the Australian Gaslight Company, Ltd., for a variation of the award of the Gasmakers' Group, No. 2 (Metropolitan) Board, it was announced that an arrangement had been reached that the standard weight of coal should be 1cwt 1qr. 14lb per skip, two skips to each retort, and all coal carbonised in excess of the standard weight be paid for by the company pro rata on the present rate of pay. Mr. Curtis (instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley) appeared in support of the application; Mr. Hume for the Sydney Gasmakers' Association; and Mr. Rawlin for some of the men engaged in the industry.

PORT JACKSON COAL WORKERS.

This was an application by Lyle and others for the cancellation of the registration of the Port Jackson Coalworkers' Union. The applicants had been expelled from the union, and the Court had previously directed that the men should be restored to membership, provided with discs, and given equal opportunity of obtaining such work as offered. It was stated that the Court's order had been complied with, and the matter was accordingly struck out. Mr. Moffatt appeared for the applicants; and Mr. Fawl for the union.

QUARTER SESSIONS APPEAL.

William Crozier appealed against his conviction at the Central Police Court by Mr. W. Macfarlane, S.M., on November 15 on two charges of having goods in his possession reasonably suspected of having been stolen. Mr. W. Parker, for Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the appellant; and Mr. H. Harris for the respondent. The appeals were upheld, and the convictions set aside.

LAND APPEAL COURT.

(Before Mr. H. A. G. Curry, President, and Mr. W. Houston, C.M.G., and C. E. Rennie, Commissioners.)

IN RE GARLAND.

The Court delivered a reserved decision in respect of a reference by the Minister as to the appraisement of the capital value of Thomas Archer Sparling Garland's homestead selection, No. 1897 12, Murrurundi. The Court, holding that amendments introduced into section 94 of the Crown Lands Amendment Act did not apply, as the Land Board assumed, to this case, sustained the Minister's reference, and remitted the matter to the Land Board for necessary action.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

It was very evident to Copplestone that whether Miss Chatfield had spoken the truth or not when she said that her father had not told her of his visit to the "Admiral's Arms," she was thoroughly conversant with all the facts relating to the Oliver mystery, and he was still doubtful as to whether she was not seeking information.

"Does it matter at all what I think," he answered evasively. "I've no part in this affair—I'm a mere spectator. I don't know how what you refer to might be considered by people who are accustomed to size things up. They might say all that was a mere coincidence."

"But what do you think?" she said with feminine persistence. "Come, now, between ourselves!"

Copplestone laughed. They had come to the edge of the wooded park in which the estate agent's house stood, and at a gate which led into it, he paused.

"Between ourselves, then, I don't think at all—yet," he answered, "I haven't sized anything up. All I should say at present is that it—or as, for I'm sure the fisherman repeated accurately what he heard—as Oliver said he met somebody called Marston Greyle in America, why—I conclude he did. That's all. Now, won't you let me see you through these dark woods?"

But Addie said her farewell, and left him somewhat abruptly, and he watched her until she had passed out of the circle of light from the lamp which swung over the gate. She passed on into the shadows—and Copplestone, who had already memorised the chief geographical points of his new surroundings, noticed what she probably thought no stranger would notice, that instead of going towards her father's house, she turned up the drive to the Squire's.

CHAPTER VII.

LEFT ON GUARD.

Stafford was back at Scarhaven before breakfast time next morning, bringing with him a roll of copies of the "Norcaster Daily Chronicle," one of which he immediately displayed to Copplestone and Mrs. Wooler, who met him at the inn door. He pointed with great pride to certain staring headlines.

"I engineered that!" he exclaimed. "Went round to the newspaper office last night and put them up to everything. Nothing like publicity in these cases. There you are! Mysterious disappearance of Famous Actor! Bassett Oliver Missing! Interview with Man who Saw him Last! That's the style, Copplestone!—every human being along this coast'll be reading that by now."

"So there was no news of him last night?" asked Copplestone.

"Neither last night nor this morning, my boy," replied Stafford. "Of course not! No—he never left here, not he! Now then, let Mrs. Wooler serve us that nice breakfast which I'm sure she has in readiness, and then we're going to plunge into business, hot and strong. There's a couple of detectives coming on by the nine o'clock train, and we're going to do the whole thing thoroughly."

"What about his brother?" inquired Copplestone.

"I wired him last night to his London address, and got a reply first thing this morning," said Stafford. "He's coming along by the 5.15 a.m. from King's Cross—he'll be here before noon. I want to get things to work before he arrives, though. And the first thing to do of course, is to make sympathetic inquiry, and to search the shore, and the cliffs, and these woods—and that Keep. All that we'll attend to at once."

But on going round to the village police station they found that Stafford's ideas had already been largely anticipated. The news of the strange gentleman's mysterious disappearance had spread like wild-fire through Scarhaven and the immediate district during the previous evening, and at daybreak parties of fisher-folk had begun a systematic search. These parties kept coming in to report progress all the morning, by noon they had all returned. They had searched the famous rocks, the woods, the park, the Keep, and its adjacent ruins, and the cliffs and shore for some considerable distance north and south of the bay, and there was no result. Not a trace, not a sign of the missing man was to be found anywhere. And when, at one o'clock Stafford and Copplestone walked up to the little station to meet Sir Cresswell Oliver, it was with the disappointing consciousness that they had no news to give him.

Copplestone, who nourished a natural taste for celebrities of any sort, born of his artistic leanings and tendencies, had looked forward with interest to meeting Sir Cresswell Oliver, who, only a few months previously, had made himself famous by a remarkable feat of seamanship in which great personal bravery and courage had been displayed. He had a vague expectation of seeing a bluff, stalwart, sea-dog type of man, instead, he presently found himself shaking hands with a very quiet-looking, elderly gentleman who might have been a barrister or a doctor of pleasant and kindly manners. With him was another gentleman of a similar type, and of about the same age, whom he introduced as the family solicitor, Mr. Petherton. And to these two, in a private sitting-room at the "Admiral's Arms," Stafford, as Bassett Oliver's business representative, and Copplestone, as having remained on the spot since the day before, told all and every detail of what had transpired since it was definitely established that the famous actor was missing. Both listened in silence and with deep attention; when all the facts had been put before them they went aside and talked together; then they returned, and Sir Cresswell besought Stafford and Copplestone's attention.

"I want to tell you young gentlemen precisely what Mr. Petherton and I think it best to do," he said in the mild and bland accents which had so much astonished Copplestone. "We have listened, as you will admit, with our best attention. Mr. Petherton, as you know, is a man of law; I myself, when I have the good luck to be ashore, am a Chairman of Quarter Sessions, so I'm accustomed to hearing and weighing evidence. We don't think there's any doubt that my poor brother has met with some curious mishap which has resulted in his death. It seems impossible, going on what you tell us from the evidence you've collected, that he could ever have approached that Devil's Spout place unseen; it also seems impossible that he can have had a fatal fall over the cliffs, since his body has not been found. No—we think something befell him in the neighbourhood of Scarhaven Keep. But what? Foul play? Possibly! If it was—why? And there are three people Mr. Petherton and I would like to speak to, privately—the fisherman, Ewbank, Mr. Marston Greyle, and Mrs. Valentine Greyle. We should like to hear Ewbank's story for ourselves; we certainly want to see the Squire; and I, personally, wish to see Mrs. Greyle because, from what Mr. Copplestone there has told us, I am quite sure that I, too, knew her a good many years ago, when she was acquainted with my brother Bassett. So we propose, Mr. Stafford, to go and see these three people—and when we have seen them, I will tell you and Mr. Copplestone exactly what I, as my brother's representative, wish to be done."

The two younger men waited impatiently in and about the hotel while their elders went on their self-appointed mission. Stafford, essentially a man of activity, speculated on their reasons for seeing the three people whom Sir Cresswell Oliver had specifically mentioned; Copplestone was meanwhile wondering if he could with propriety pay another visit to Mrs. Greyle's cottage that night. It was drawing near to dusk when the two quiet-looking elderly gentlemen returned and summoned the younger ones to another conference. Both looked as reserved and bland as when they had set out, and the old seaman's voice was just as suave as ever when he addressed them.

"Well, gentlemen," he said, "we have paid our visits, and I suppose I had better tell you at once that we are no wiser as to actual facts than we were when we left you earlier in the afternoon. The man Ewbank stands emphatically by his story; Mr. Marston Greyle says that he cannot remember any meeting with my brother in America, and that he certainly did not call on him here on Sunday; Mrs. Valentine Greyle has not met Bassett for a great many years. Now—there the matter stands. Of course, it cannot rest there. Further inquiries will have to be made. Mr. Petherton and I are going on to Norcaster this evening, and we shall have a very substantial reward offered to any person who can give any information about my brother. That may result in something—or in nothing. As to my brother's business arrangements, I will go fully into that matter with you, Mr. Stafford, at Norcaster, tomorrow. Now, Mr. Copplestone, will you have a word or two with me in private?"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read "Warrigal's" letter in your issue of the 28th inst. All my figures refer to beef from purebred beef steers, fattened to beef quality. I have not said anything about beef from dairy crosses or worn-out dairy cows, or second-rate meat of any kind, and the Sydney citizen who acted for me in buying, paying for, and taking delivery of the beef in a city shop, of course, did not announce that he was making a test. For six or seven years up to 1915 it only cost me 1½d per lb to get my mutton and beef to the London consumers, and that fact it seems to me should be both curious and interesting to Sydney consumers.

I am, etc., W. E. ABBOTT.

Chapped Hands.

Of course! Exposure to bitter weather; no gloves, may be; work which soils the hands, so that frequent washing is necessary—result, sore hands, cracked and bleeding—may be blood poisoning.

Keep your hands in good condition with Rexona, the Rapid Healer. A perfect skin treatment in itself. After work wash them with Rexona Soap, dry carefully, then rub in Rexona Ointment. Your hands will respond to its healing influence, become soft and flexible without sores or blemishes. Rexona keeps the hands safe from Winter Troubles.

Those who have used Rexona know its Value.

"I had terribly chapped hands, they were just like beef steak, they were so raw looking," writes Mrs. A. Deakin, 118 Coisden-street, South Melbourne, Vic. "I was so bad I could not do my housework or washing. The pain was excruciating. I tried all sorts of ointments on my hands day and night, but it was of no use. At last I tried Rexona, and that ointment healed them rapidly. My hands are now thoroughly cured."

ECZEMA.

Why suffer with Eczema? Why toss on your bed at night, and scratch your burning skin? Although Eczema is the most common of all skin diseases, and often results from a trifling exposure to heat or cold, do not underestimate its danger. It often becomes chronic, causes dreadful suffering and disfigurement, and even blindness, deafness, or loss of hair.

Rexona, the Rapid Healer, is a dire enemy to Eczema, as well as to all other skin diseases. Rexona will make your skin healthy, destroy the germs of the disease for ever, and cause the building up of new skin tissue. A hot bath with Rexona Soap, gentle anointing with Rexona Ointment, a pleasant treatment. Result—sleep quietly, skin soothed and healed, while soon all trace of the disease leaves you. You are healthy. Eczema yields to the powerful healing influences of Rexona, the Rapid Healer.

15 Years' Suffering Ended.

"I have suffered from Eczema for the last 15 years, and tried different remedies until I was thoroughly sick of trying them," writes Mr. J. J. Rogers, Cr. George and William Sts., Norwood, Adelaide, S.A. "About a year ago I had a severe attack of Eczema on my hands. On that occasion I lost two finger nails and one thumb nail. Nine months ago I had another severe attack in the ankles and legs. I used to scratch them until the blood was running. Then I had to get up in the middle of the night and let the tap run on them until they would be numb with the cold and the flesh raw and blue. Then to work next day with the pick and shovel. This was fighting a battle under difficulties for bread and to keep a roof over my head. I was later suffering from another attack of Eczema on the hands, the fingers swelled and had big cracks in them, one from the first to the third joint. About this time I was recommended to try Rexona, and found the cooling and soothing effect was something beyond my expectation. I got a large pot and used it, and it has perfectly cured me. I feel confident that anyone suffering from Eczema, no matter of how long standing, will be speedily cured."

PILES.

Women who suffer from Piles are especially unfortunate in that they cannot talk about their complaint. They must suffer in silence. To all such Rexona comes as a great blessing, for it is easily obtained, easily applied, and the result is always gratifying. The distressing symptoms quickly subside, and mind and body both feel relief from the constant strain almost after the first application. In this Ointment are combined juices and essences in an entirely new and unique manner, forming a remedy justly celebrated as a Rapid Healer. Rexona is a remedy which is especially valuable in the treatment of piles. Those who try it will not be disappointed. Rexona is sold everywhere at 1/6, or in pots holding four times the quantity for 3/.

A Lady Writes:

"For some time internal bleeding piles caused me much suffering," writes Mrs. W. Lemp, 164 Tarrow-street, Invercargill, N.Z. "The irritation was unbearable. I could not lie, walk, or sit, on account of the pain and uncomfortable feeling. I tried many remedies, all with no success. Nothing did me any good. Rexona Ointment was recommended to me, and the first two or three applications of this splendid balm acted like magic. After using Rexona Ointment for only a short time I was freed from my terrible affliction and completely cured. It is well called "The Rapid Healer."

WHEAT OFFICE METHODS.

The following is an interesting but far from flattering commentary on the methods of the State Wheat Office. On May 7 Messrs. Southwell Bros., of Junee, wrote to the Wheat Office, asking for permission to consign two lots of seed wheat, one to Gundagai and one to Victoria. As the matter was urgent, it was specially asked that the office should telegraph the authority required, as one of the persons concerned had arranged to consign his seed on the following day. Nothing more was heard of the matter for three days, and then Messrs. Southwell Bros. received the following communication, dated May 9:—"I have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 8th inst., and to inform you that the subject matter will receive attention. Yours faithfully, E. Harris, Officer-in-charge."

On May 11 Southwell Bros. again wrote the department, protesting that the matter should have been treated as one of urgency, as it was very important at this time of the year that seed should be promptly available. "We take it," the Junee firm wrote, "that your department is very anxious that the farmer should be encouraged to put in as large an area as possible; but when he is hampered with restrictions, and cannot get the necessary authority for the conveyance of his seed by rail, it has a tendency to retard the cultivation of wheat rather than to encourage it." It was asked again that the matter should be given "urgent attention." Two days later—or four days after the original request was made for a telegraphed authority—the Wheat Office again sent the following stereotyped reply:—"Sydney, 13/5/1918. I have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of May 11, and to inform you that the subject matter will receive attention. Yours faithfully, E. Harris, Office-in-charge, Govt. Wheat Office."

Yet the Government is encouraging farmers to grow more wheat.

Another incident that does not indicate a proper sense of economy on the part of the State Wheat Office comes from Manildra. After the wheat locally had been reconditioned there were left on hand a large number of bags which were damaged beyond remedy. The local secretary of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, Mr. Andrew Anderson, learned that instructions had been sent to the local agent to burn these bags. Considering this was a waste of material, and that the bags could be utilised in some way, he obtained permission from the local agent to remove the bags, and thus save the cost of burning. They were then put in bundles, and a consignment of 3 tons 12cwt 3qrs was sent to the Sydney Paper Mills, with the result that, after all expenses had been paid, the return showed a balance of £8 8s 5d. Mr. Anderson has forwarded a cheque for that amount to the general secretary of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, Mr. T. I. Campbell, and after detailing the circumstances, says:—"My branch considers, in view of the returns, that a great waste is going on by these bags being burned, and I am enclosing herewith a cheque for £8 8s 5d, with a request that you will pay it into the Wheat Pool, and also urge on the directors of the Wheat Board that the practice of burning these old bags should be stopped immediately, as they are, in view of these facts, an asset to the pool. No doubt the same instructions are issued to agents all over the State re these bags, and I would suggest that the board be asked to cancel the instructions by wire, and thus stop this waste."

Mr. Campbell has brought the matter under the notice of the Minister for Agriculture, and, as requested, is forwarding the cheque to the State Wheat Office. Probably this will be one of the few occasions when the sight of a cheque is not welcome.

WHEAT-GROWING.

BONUS FOR FALLOWING.

The Minister for Agriculture yesterday announced that the Government had decided to make an advance of 5s per acre on fallowed land.

"For some time past," said Mr. Grahame, "my department has been conducting experiment plots throughout the wheat districts in connection with fallowing. The results give striking testimony as to the greatly increased yields in good seasons upon land that has been fallowed, while in bad seasons it has been demonstrated beyond doubt that fallowed land produces some sort of a yield, whereas unfallowed land adjoining has been an entire failure. Practical experienced farmers recognise the value of fallowing, but in many instances small farmers cannot afford the time necessary, having to seek other employment in the period between sowing and harvesting their crops. In order to still further encourage wheat-growing, the Government has now decided to render financial assistance to farmers in placing areas under fallow this year, with a view to being sown with wheat next season. Some assistance of the kind appears to be necessary, for of the area sown with wheat last year only 21 per cent. received preliminary fallowing. The conditions of the advance have yet to be settled, but the Government has decided definitely to make an advance at the rate of 5s per acre on land fallowed this year; the loan to be secured by a lien on the next wheat crop. Certain conditions will be attached to the granting of the advance, as, for instance, the depth of ploughing, the number of cultivations the fallow shall receive prior to sowing, and the time for ploughing and sowing. I expect that advantage will be taken of the concession by numbers of small farmers, who will thus be able to remain on their own holding throughout the whole year, instead of having to seek work elsewhere."

BULK HANDLING.

WHAT IS BEING DONE.

In the matter of bulk handling New South Wales has completely out-distanced the other States. While a start has yet to be made in Victoria, South Australia, and Western Australia, it is anticipated that in New South Wales out of a total storage capacity of 11 million bushels in the emergency country grain elevators, between seven and eight million bushels storage will be ready before the commencement of next harvest, and the balance before the conclusion of the season.

In the course of an official statement, the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. W. C. Grahame, said that contracts were accepted at the end of December at a price which averaged 9.378d per bushel for storage. One of the bins—that at Peak Hill—is now ready for the roof, while various stages of progress have been reached at 15 separate stations, including The Rock, Uranquinty, Lockhart, Temora, Peak Hill, Narromine, Milbrulong, Boree Creek, Oaklands, Stockinbingal, Combaning, Ariah Park, Dubbo, Eumungerie, and Gilgandra. When the working houses in connection with the elevators are erected later on, it is anticipated that the total cost per bushel will be about 11d. In reporting to the Minister in charge, the superintending engineer says:—"We had a decided advantage in getting our contracts out before the other States, since it gave us the benefit of better rates for material than would have been the case had the other States got into the market before us."

"In this connection," said Mr. Grahame, "it is of personal interest to every farmer to note that in Victoria plans for the bulk handling scheme were prepared by the Railway Department. Tenders were called, and when they were received it was ascertained that the cost per bushel worked out at 1/9, more than double that at which the New South Wales elevators are being constructed. Naturally this caused the Victorian Government to give further consideration to the question, with the result that in Victoria the Government practically has to start again by getting fresh plans. As far as I can ascertain no definite action has yet been taken by the Government of South Australia in connection with the bulk handling system, while in Western Australia the position is even more involved. The Western Australian Government entered into an arrangement with Messrs. Metcalfe and Co., who designed the New South Wales scheme. The necessary plans were prepared by Messrs. Metcalfe and Co., and the contract was ratified by the Lower House, only to be rejected by the Upper House.

"While work in this State is actually in progress—and in some cases approaching completion—at the 15 places mentioned the contracts already entered into provide for a total of 71 emergency country grain elevators, the average price for the whole of them being less than 9½d per bushel. In addition to the country elevators work is proceeding apace with the excavation of the foundations for the Sydney terminal elevator at Glebe Island. We are now negotiating with the unions for the working of a second shift, in order that the work may be expedited. When the excavations are complete a start will be made at once with the construction work, giving a storage accommodation of over six million bushels."

POULTRY AND PIGEON CLUB SHOW.

The annual show of the Poultry and Pigeon Club of New South Wales opened yesterday at the Municipal Poultry Markets. The display of poultry marks distinct progress on the quality and in the number of the birds penned. The strongest classes include Black Orpingtons, Rhode Island Reds, White Leghorns, and Langshans. The utility classes, which are judged primarily for laying points, form an interesting feature of the show, and the number of birds indicates the very wide interest in commercial poultry farming. There is a good collection of game fowls, including British, Australian, and Indian game. Mr. N. Calder's Indian Game hen received the prize for the best bird in the show, and for the same distinction in the opposite sex Bonaventure Farm's White Wyandotte cockerel obtained the judges' approval.

Of pigeons, there was a fine collection, including racing homers, which are proving so valuable for military purposes, and utility breeds. The show will be continued to-day and on Saturday.

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1918.

THE GERMAN SUCCESS.

It is clear beyond dispute that the Allies have suffered a reverse which is already very serious and may involve the consequences of a disaster. The Germans assert that they have met and defeated a portion of General Foch's reserves, but with that exception there is no substantial difference between their claims and the admissions of the Allies. On their left the enemy have captured or occupied the villages and heights from which they had been repulsed by the local counter-attacks of the French. They have reached the outskirts of Soissons, and are struggling to make good their hold on both banks of the river. To the north-east they have occupied the heights which dominate the Vesle, and for half the distance between Soissons and Reims have gained control of the river and of the railway on its banks. In the neighbourhood of Reims they have made important but not decisive progress. Their aim is evidently to gain a half-circle of heights round the town, for which they have a starting point through their possession of the old forts of Brimont and Noyent l'Abbesse on the east. The retirement of the British has enabled them to attack the heights of Thierry to the north-west of the town, and they have captured the heights of Rouilly, slightly further west. Reims is by no means lost, thanks to a heroic British resistance, but it is obviously in great danger. The defence has been drawn in close to the town in the angle between the Vesle River and the Aisne-Marne Canal. When the Germans attempted to recapture Reims after occupying the Aisne Heights in 1914 they came down the Roman road from Laon and Neufchatel, crossed the canal at Loivre, as they have done to-day, reached and passed the heights of Thierry, and reached the suburb of la Neuvilette. There they failed, the exhausted remnant of their forces being unable to hold out against the French garrison. There we hope they will fail again against the Franco-British defenders, supported by their reserves, but we have to admit that to-day the German tactical positions are stronger and their safeguards against exhaustion more effective. The fall of Reims would not destroy the defences of France or of Paris, but it would be a serious check to the Allied plans. Reims is the link between the armies of the Champagne and of Verdun, which covers the defence of the Argonne. For attack or for defence it is one of the most important road centres in France. It is the starting point of roads and railways to Laon or Chalons, and it commands all the country between the Aisne and the Marne. Its evacuation by the order of General Joffre in 1914 was interpreted throughout Germany as a proof of the utter demoralisation of the French, and correspondents went into ecstasies about the cathedral as if it were a German possession. To-day it will be defended with the heroism which the Allied troops have shown in front of Amiens and Hazebrouck and Ypres, and at any sacrifice except the loss of an army. But though Reims may be saved the Germans have already gained advantages which, in their eyes, will justify any expenditure of men and material. Their hold on France has been immensely strengthened, they have improved the positions of their armies not only in the Champagne but in Picardy and Flanders, and they have justified the belief expressed by their Emperor that their advance may be carried still further.

It is obvious that every one of the Allied positions is now in serious danger except those in the east, Verdun, Toul, and Belfort. There is no safety for Paris while the Germans hold a line from Soissons to Noyon. There is no safety for Amiens or for Ypres while the Allies are defending all but the last defences of both towns. It is the number and importance of these threatened centres and the distances which separate them which make the present position of the enemy so strong. General Foch cannot weaken his defences at any one spot without risking a disaster. He can reinforce against a threatened attack only with his mobile reserves, and must move them round the circumference of a circle while the Germans are moving swiftly to one point or another from the centre. It follows that even when the Allies have withdrawn from their first lines they are bound to be outnumbered, and are likely to surrender territory. When the reserves come up the advance may be stopped, as the Allies are confident that it will be again to-day. But the reserves cannot stop an advance without loss to themselves, and they will not be wasted in an attempt to recover positions. The least dangerous outcome of this offensive is therefore that still further demands must be made on the man-power of the Allies. The Germans are able to double the value of each unit through their mobility. The effectiveness of the Allied troops has diminished through the delay involved in moving them along the now vastly extended front. The only way of meeting this danger is by sending more men into the field. The Americans have done wonders by hurrying forward their army while continuing to supply Europe with food. The British people have accomplished a no less remarkable feat by increasing their output of munitions while sending weekly drafts of munition workers to the army. These troops, however, cannot be placed in the firing line for some months to come if they are to do the best service of which they are capable. Lack of men must render the interval a time of acute anxiety for the Allies. There is no lack of brains, of experience, or of munitions. General Foch met difficulties very similar to those of to-day when, after the battle of the Aisne, he was ordered to anticipate the German outflanking movement which was to have given the enemy the Channel ports. To-day he meets the Germans in the very zenith of their hopes and of their power. They have never been so confident and so insolent except once, and that was when Rheims lay open before them and they were about to find in General Foch the instrument of their first great defeat.

WAKE UP.

It should not be necessary to call upon men like Lieutenant Marks, who is home on furlough, to take up the burden of recruiting. Their presence in our midst ought to be enough. They have been away since the war began and have only returned for health reasons eager to get back as soon as possible; and the fact that they must thus return should be the greatest appeal to our eligibles that could be made. But nothing has been more stimulating as a matter of fact than the story these veteran fighters have to tell; nor could anything be more impressive than their warnings to people in Australia who seem to think that immunity from immediate attack is equivalent to absolute security. Captain Carmichael's success has shown how far the personal factor counts in destroying such fallacies; and the naval and the military leader each has found that nothing tells like direct experience of the thing sought to be impressed upon other people, recounted in the simplest language. Sincerity and the simple truth are the finest weapons in the world when dealing with the unconverted. For this reason nothing but satisfaction can be felt that Lieutenant Marks should be able and willing to take the platform as he has done, and that he has not been afraid to tell the truth about German frightfulness in plain words and in terms so direct that no mistake can be made about their meaning. The immediate significance of it all lies in the threat to our womenfolk. Many a man who read, and all who heard, Lieutenant Marks's terrible speech at the Rockdale Town Hall on Wednesday night suddenly found himself facing the war from a new angle. There was nothing fresh in the facts as given. Or if some were new they had their equivalents in other outrages upon Belgian and French women already reported in the columns of the Press or recorded in the investigations of men like Lord Bryce. But the sense of a personal experience was found in the Rockdale speaker's emphasis. His wife had been in direct contact with the unfortunate nuns who have been the victims of German lust; and we know only too well from authenticated documents that German policy has inspired the most damnable practices. No woman in any invaded country is free from the danger of violation; and if this be true of Belgium, whose people have fought with supreme heroism, what may be expected in Australia should the enemy ever gain a footing upon these shores? It is not mere bogey raising to declare the truth in this fashion. Lieutenant Marks speaks that he knows and testifies that he has seen. But Australian soldiers have left such wounds upon German battalions that revenge as well as a devilish policy of forcing the whole world into the Teutonic mould will move German soldiers to practise the worst they are capable of upon us; and no further argument should be needed to make our women realise what awaits them if Germany proves to be the victor in this war.

Lieutenant Marks turned to Australian women as holding the key of the recruiting position. In their hands is the power to fill our broken battalions and to strengthen the lines in Europe where the Hun is throwing himself in a final desperate effort to break through. The appeal to them is to force the 600,000 eligibles in our midst to do their duty; and one needs little imagination to picture the result if our young manhood fit for the front, but lagging wittingly or thoughtlessly behind in Australia, were suddenly faced with universal feminine scorn. In America the women have so entered into the spirit of this call of a war to the knife that not only have the eligible men responded to the fiat of universal service with alacrity, but every non-eligible man has discovered himself at the bar of judgment. Such a searching out of people who ought to be doing war work or giving its equivalent in cash has never been known before; and the folk who whisper or practise disloyalty are being placed in the fierce light of a concentrated inquisition that leaves nothing untouched. This is the fighting spirit of a great nation raised to its proper level of intention and endeavour; and not until our women get into the same mood will our evading eligibles discover their way to recruiting stations. But it would be unfair to suppose that everything depends upon the women in this way. Australian men and women are great comrades. Many an eligible man would now be in the fighting lines and our scrapped battalions would be in full strength had the truth about the war, as Captain Carmichael and Lieutenant Marks have told it, been burnt in earlier. Both men and women have responded to their story. The men think of possible outrage upon their loved ones with hearts made resolute to prevent it by any sacrifice to themselves; and once the vision of Australian womanhood in danger comes to our eligibles it is inconceivable that they will shrink from doing their duty. Lieutenant Marks's experience through the North Coast and in Queensland has borne this out. Once he could get men hostile to recruiting and apparently determined to treat him as a recruiting agent, to listen to him the rest was easy. Not their women turning upon them in wrath and indignation moved them to offer themselves as recruits after hearing what Lieutenant Marks had to say. It was the appeal to men of a man who told them clearly and forcibly what he knew and had seen; and this must ever be the strongest force where the women are concerned—for the women make appeal by remaining silent. Shall they be outraged and sacrificed because their men refuse to fight? Never. Such was the note which was struck again and again by Lieutenant Marks; and we have no doubt that could he be retained here to continue his story and persist in his appeals, he would do much to reinforce the Australian army. But the women, after all, still have the matter in their own hands; and the paradox is again best explained by the fact that the men are what women make them.

INVALID SOLDIERS.

DISEMBARKING TO-MORROW.

Another contingent of invalid soldiers will disembark to-morrow morning, and friends and relations who have received tickets marked "Y" from the Staff Officer for Invalids will be admitted to the Anzac Buffet at 11.15 a.m. to meet the New South Wales men. The names of cot cases, if any, will be posted at the buffet as soon as disembarkation commences, and relations may meet the men at the hospital. The Queenslanders will be taken to the railway station, where they will be given tea, and will leave by a special train at 11.35 a.m.

Motor cars numbered on the Red Cross register from 425 to 536 are required to be at the No. 1 Wharf, Woolloomooloo, at 10.30 a.m.

The Voluntary Aids on duty will be:—Train, Sydney to Brisbane, Newtown Men's V.A.D.; wharf, Petersham V.A.D.; Anzac Buffet, Milson's Point V.A.D., under Miss Evans, with Mosman V.A.D.; Queenslanders' tea on station, Lewisham V.A.D.

UPPER HUNTER.

MR. FULLER'S TOUR.

THE BIG STRIKE ISSUE.

MURRURUNDI, Thursday.

Mr. Fuller, Chief Secretary, addressed a meeting of the electors at Murrurundi Oddfellows' Hall on Wednesday night in support of Mr. W. Cameron, selected National candidate. The hall was filled, and the speaker was given a splendid reception. The Mayor (Ald. G. B. White) presided. Mr. Fuller said:—This is a time when we have to respond as well as we can to the call of Empire. We have not forgotten the soldiers who went away at the beginning of the war; we have not forgotten the deeds of the soldiers at Gallipoli and elsewhere. We remember when the Germans set out to gain dominion of the world how they over-ran little Belgium. We want to do all we can to help to down the enemy.

In regard to conscription, I ask what has the State Government to do with it? I had the honour of being 13 years in the Federal Parliament, and was present when the Defence Bill was passed, and those who are now opposing conscription were actually the ones who introduced it then. Conscription is wholly and solely for the Federal Government. How can it affect a candidate putting up for the State Parliament? I wish to refer to another matter which is being referred to by Opposition speakers in the campaign, and that is the secret memorandum. Well, here it is. Any one of you can come and read it if you wish. The speaker read the memorandum in full.

The memorandum in question was simply produced for the purpose of helping along recruiting, and was based on recommendations made to the Cabinet a few weeks previously. The matter was submitted, considered, and turned down; that was the end of it. But this matter has nothing to do with the return of either Mr. Cameron or Captain Toombs.

"I was responsible for bringing about the National party in New South Wales. It was with the idea of getting men to represent the best interests of the country. You have men here who say we have done nothing. We have only been in power 14 months, but we have reduced expense and put an end to the Norton Griffiths contract, which was much talked about. Messrs. Storey, Osborne, and Co. supported the contract. We promised when we got into power to put an end to the contract, and we did it; to prevent big contractors becoming millionaires at the expense of the taxpayers. (Applause.) Mr. Ball, Minister for Works, has closed non-paying concerns taken on by the Government in the interest of the State. That would be the policy of the National Government. The trawling industry was started by the late Labour Administration to see if there was an abundance of fish, and secondly to find a cheaper form of food for the poor people. Later I found the men out on strike, and the industry in a state of chaos. I told them we expected them to give a 'helping' hand. That was on a Thursday. I said, 'I will give you till Monday morning to get back to work.' With the exception of one none of those went back, with the result that none of these men are now employed, and will not be as long as I sit in the Chief Secretary's chair. It is not unionism. We all believe in unionism when properly carried out, but not a system of unionism carried on by a few men who will not work. I am pleased to see that no less than 26 unions in Sydney are cutting the painter as far as this class of unionism is concerned. They are tired of the class of men that Captain Toombs represents, who by their action are no doubt playing into the hands of the enemy.

"There are many other matters which we have adjusted in the interests of the State. We have made greater progress than any other State in bulk handling of wheat."

Regarding the recent strike, Mr. Fuller said:—"It was not a strike, but a revolt. Mr. Storey took it upon himself to make the statement that the Government took advantage of it to smash the unionist organisations in this State. We are not trying to smash unions; moreover, we are prepared to help them in whatever way we can. This strike took place over the card system, but the card system is not opposed to the principle of unionism. Some unionists have been filling up cards for years past, and they never complained. The card system was only made an excuse for the revolt. There were men who were spreading pernicious doctrines, and is it not terrible to think that we have men in our midst of that class who had left other countries for the good of those countries? I was Acting Premier at the time the strike occurred, and had to control the position. It was said that Mr. Fraser was trying to 'speed up' when he introduced the card system, but it was only suspicion on the part of the men. Mr. Fraser saw that the card system was necessary. It was the duty of Mr. Fraser to see that every man did a fair day's work for the wages he received, and it can be said that the railway men of New South Wales do give a good day's work. (Applause.) It is not fair that shirkers should be in the service. That was Mr. Fraser's object in introducing the card system. Then an ultimatum was sent, giving notice that unless the cards were withdrawn the whole of the men would stop work in 24 hours. Under the rules of unionism no strike should take place without a ballot being first taken; but on the mere word of a few men who are trying to rule the country a strike was declared. I faced the position with no malice or vindictiveness. In the House that afternoon I said the Government did everything they could to prevent a strike taking place. It was promised that if the system was given three months' trial the Government would have a public inquiry—not departmental—and if it was proved not desirable it would be abolished; but the men refused to agree to that. I invited Mr. Storey to join in a conference to see if we could avert a disaster, but he refused. I believe Mr. Storey was in earnest in his desire to avert a strike, but he was guided by the Trades Hall. Mr. Storey is not his own master in these matters. The Government was prepared to meet representatives of the strikers that night, but they would not meet us." The speaker said he was sure that the patriotism of the electors would keep them from putting the red flag party into power. In Mr. Cameron they would have a man to represent them who belonged to the National party, rather than the man who, by virtue of his nomination, was associated with the Trades Hall.

PERSONAL.

His Excellency the Governor will attend this evening an entertainment in aid of the 2nd D.A.C. and 22nd Howitzer Brigade Comforts Fund. Upon arrival at St. James's Hall his Excellency will be received by a military guard of honour and band.

On Saturday last his Excellency the Governor was presented at Government House by Mr. A. W. Meeks, M.L.C. (president), and the office-bearers, with the golden lyre of the Royal Sydney Apollo Club, of which he has become patron. In response, the Governor expressed his intention of being present with Lady Davidson at the concert on June 11.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. F. M. Gellatly and Mr. Farmer Whyte were entertained by the Sydney Press Club, on account of their approaching departure from the State. The chair was occupied by the president (Mr. Bert Mudge). The health of Mr. Whyte was proposed by the chairman, and the toast was supported by Mr. C. C. Faulkner (chairman of the Australian Journalists' Association), and the Minister for Local Government (Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald). The health of Dr. Gellatly was proposed by Mr. Faulkner, and supported by Mr. M'Callum and the chairman. The toasts were enthusiastically honoured.

A private cable message has been received by Captain Selmes, of North Sydney, stating that his son, Lieut. A. G. Selmes, has been awarded the Military Cross. He sailed with the first contingent in 1914 as gunner, and is one of five brothers fighting.

Mr. H. A. James, Examiner in the Department of Mines, who is retiring after having completed 43 years' service, was made a presentation by Mr. R. H. Cambage, Under-Secretary, on behalf of the officers of the Department of Mines.

Mr. A. G. Newington, who has been employed at Garden Island since the outbreak of war, was, on the eve of his departure for Melbourne, presented by his fellow-employees with a Waltham lever watch and a safety razor. The presentation was made by Fleet Paymaster Stephens. Mr. Newington was also presented by Mr. F. G. Cheeseman, on behalf of a number of city friends, with a gold-mounted cigarette holder in case. Mr. Newington has been transferred to Navy Office, Melbourne.

Mr. E. C. Eliot, Resident Commissioner in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands colony, is in Sydney on official business, and will remain about six weeks.

BOARD OF TRADE.

The Government has offered the position of president of the Board of Trade to Mr. Justice Harden.

MARCH TO FREEDOM.

178 MEN JOIN THE RANKS.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

BRANXTON, Thursday.

Singleton, where the miniature army had halted for a day to gather in recruits, was left behind this morning. It was a quiet outgoing, as the column moved away from the well-appointed show ground to swing once more on to the main north road. Although the stay was short, 16 recruits had been added to the list, and the good time and good things provided by the people will long linger in the memory of the boys. It seems that the people of these northern towns have taken to heart the remark made by Mr. Orchard, the Minister for Recruiting, back in the early days of the march. He said, "Every step these lads take is a step nearer the time when they will go into the front line of trenches to defend with their lives the freedom of Australia. We thank the people for coming out and showing these boys what hospitality means, for the best is not too good for those who are prepared to die for us." It is only fair to point out that they have done their duty in this regard both in the letter and the spirit. The mere present of a loaf of bread, a cake, or sandwich, is in itself only a gift; but when this is served by a girl or a woman who offers it with a smile and a pleasant word, the gift is twice blessed. And behind the score of such entertainments on the road the people, and especially the women, have shown their sympathy and gratitude for the boys who have donned khaki. The march to Branxton to-day was 15 miles, the actual time occupied on the road was seven hours, and the marching time five hours. All the men were as fit as possible. At Whittingham school children lined up on the roadside and waved farewell with flags. At Belford, where the column halted for dinner, a little band of children marched out unattended to meet the soldiers. The welcome at Branxton was of a hearty nature. Hundreds of people came out to the town boundary to greet the soldiers. Councillor T. Johns, president of Cessnock Shire Council, welcomed the troops to the district, and said it was gratifying to see such a large number of fine men marching away to fight for their country. It showed that there were still a large number of men in the country who were ready to answer the call of duty. Captain Eade, officer commanding, in responding, said the fact that the work of the column had been successful was proof the country was doing its duty. Cheers were given for the residents of Branxton. Mr. R. Ashworth, head master of the Public school, marshalled the procession, which, in addition to the column, was composed of Branxton Town Band, Red Cross ladies, Public school children, and pupils of the Roman Catholic school, under Father M'Mullen. The children carried little flags and marched in procession. The two bands played the procession into the park, where the camp is established. Lieut.-colonel Lorenzo visited the camp to-day, and expressed himself pleased with the good work of the people in provisioning the troops en route. The total number of volunteers presenting themselves during the march is 178, of which 132 are in khaki and 46 deferred. The best enlistments have been: Tamworth, 35 recruits out of 52 offering; Quirindi, 18 out of 21; Singleton, 16 out of 18; and Murrurundi, 11. The 11 were enrolled. Captain Cheffins, enrolling officer, drew attention to the high physical standard of the volunteers. The percentage of men passing the doctors was much higher than in the city.

Sergeant C. Hamilton, who is in charge of recruiting, speaking to a "Herald" representative to-day, said he was pleased with the success of the march. He realised that it was an experiment, but officers, men, and recruiting officers had all worked loyally together for its success. They were getting recruits, and the most sceptical critic must admit that new life was being put into the war effort of the country people.

A large scale welcome has been arranged for the column at West Maitland to-morrow. There will be a civic reception at the Town Hall and a guard of honour formed by the women war workers. Brigadier-General Lee, State Commandant, will witness their entry into the town. The troops will encamp at the show ground, and on Saturday a general parade will be held before the State Commandant.

SHIPS REQUISITIONED.

TOTAL 62 TO DATE.

OVERSEA TIME-TABLES SUSPENDED.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

A report was presented to Federal Parliament to-day showing that the number of vessels withdrawn from service in Australian waters since the war was 62, with a gross tonnage of 252,249. Details are as follow:—33 vessels (gross tonnage 141,056) from the interstate services, 3 vessels (gross tonnage 9479) temporarily withdrawn for special trips, 6 oversea vessels (gross tonnage 21,559), which carried cargo and passengers on the coast, 15 vessels (gross tonnage 74,323) which traded from Australia to New Zealand and the Pacific Island, and 5 interstate vessels (gross tonnage 5832). The number of vessels now employed in the interstate trade was 67, with a gross tonnage of 173,282.

The report also stated that the time-tables in the oversea service had all been suspended.

MEDICAL STUDENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of to-day there appears a statement by Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart in reference to the subject of enlistment of medical students of the first, second, and third years. Inasmuch as a public statement made by the Dean of the Faculty of Medicine is liable to be regarded as an official pronouncement, I feel it incumbent on me to point out that the statement in question is an expression of Sir Thomas's own views, and must not be taken as official or as representing those of the Faculty of Medicine. I do not know, nor can Sir Thomas know, what might be the opinion of the faculty as a whole, for the simple reason that the matter has not been before the faculty for consideration. But since I myself, belong one of the professors in the faculty, entertained a different view to that expressed by Sir Thomas, I feel constrained to make it public, seeing that one side of the question has now been publicly set forth.

I do not dispute the cogency of much of Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart's reasoning respecting the waste of precious medical material involved in taking potential army surgeons and putting them to rank and file combatant work. But the whole war situation represents a prodigal waste of the country's resources in men as well as material. The only consideration which seems to me to count at the present time is the desperate peril in which the Empire is now placed through lack of combatants. Every other factor is subordinate to this, and to allow anxiety for the military medical situation two or three years hence to hold back keen and willing recruits now is, in my judgment, a grave mistake.

It is idle to talk of the thousands who might go and will not. The Australian Government is committed to voluntarism, and we must act in view of this. If men are not keen and willing to go they must simply stay behind, whether they be medical students or not.

If I am asked what will happen two or three years hence if the war goes on, I can only reply that if, as is quite likely, the war is thus prolonged, and if any acute problem of this kind does then arise, we must endeavour to meet it then, and not now. One can forecast that if there is then any serious shortage of army doctors our civil population may have to get along as best it can with a smaller medical personnel, while the military shortage is made good from the ranks of the civil profession.

In the meantime, it appears to me that the removal of the embargo hitherto placed upon the enlistment of all medical students is a step which is fully justified by the urgency of the country's requirements.

And if it be contended that the numbers thus obtainable are too small to make any material difference, my reply to this insidious argument will be: (1) That the men thus obtainable are of a type which has a value far beyond its mere numbers; and (2) that the voluntary abnegation of these men, their resolution to give up a promising career and to accept in common with their less-favoured brethren all the risks of the soldier's life will have a stimulating influence on the recruiting of other young men.

Had the country seen fit to adopt a thorough and consistent scheme of regulation of national service it should have been possible duly to co-ordinate present with future requirements. Under such a scheme men would have been in no doubt as to where their duty lay. As matters stand, it is, for some of us, at least, uncomfortable to realise that at this period of our greatest need of fighting men, the University Medical School is fuller than ever, and that if the embargo on enlistment of medical students were not removed, many fit and eligible young men would only be in a position actively to serve their country three, four, or even five years hence.

I am, etc.,
J. T. WILSON.

ITALIAN RED CROSS DAY.

Although this State may have been tardy in offering assistance to Italy, it is certain that it was through no lack of sympathy or recognition of Italy's gallant deeds. An exceedingly large number of offers of assistance have been received from the city, suburbs, and country since it has been known that the Italian Red Cross Day was fixed for June 28. This proves that the public only required an opportunity to express their sympathy in a practical way.

A meeting of Italian residents has been held to organise a combined movement to help the Italian Red Cross Day Fund, and take part in the festivities of June 28. These will probably include a procession of Roman Chariots, soldiers, Bersaglieri, Alpinists, etc., which should form a novel and attractive feature.

COMMITTEE'S APPEAL.

We ask you to turn your thoughts to our Ally, Italy.

Early in the war it was Italy's generous indignation at the treatment of Belgium that evoked a declaration of benevolent neutrality towards France, enabling all French troops to leave the Italian frontier and help to win the battle of the Marne. Italy's timely sympathy helped to save Paris. Later on, Italy's main army kept legions of our enemies occupied on the Isonzo, while other Italian troops succoured the routed Servians and enabled the French and British to establish a line from Salonica to the Adriatic.

More recently the defection of Russia exposed Italy to a dreadful onslaught from the concentrated hosts of our common enemy. It was only with the greatest gallantry and fortitude that Italy's heroic soldiers stemmed the tide of invasion. We are proud to think that French and British troops, including Australians, helped to establish the line along the Piave. Unfortunately, a fair province of Italy has been over-run, and its inhabitants have experienced the bitter sufferings and ruthless oppression which have been the lot of Belgium and Servia.

During the war Italy has been especially exposed to aeroplane attacks. Venice, with its priceless architectural treasures, has been selected as a favourite objective by the Huns, and many other famous Italian cities, with their world-renowned art collections, have also been bombarded.

The submarine campaign has been a particularly sore trial for Italy, who depends for her coal and many other supplies on sea communication. The shortage of coal, as well as of food and of many necessities, including medical stores, has caused very acute suffering.

We have seen Italy's noble answer to German Boloism. When the great Hun offensive recently started in Flanders a large Italian army was promptly sent to support British and Australian soldiers in their hour of trial.

In spite of her difficulties, Italy has ever been prompt with sympathy and help. Will you join in sending a hearty message of help and sympathy to her?

Belgian Day, Allies' Day, France's Day, have all been spontaneous expressions of good fellowship from the people of New South Wales to their comrades in the great fight. It remains for us to send a similar greeting to Italy.

Australia's battle is being fought on the Piave as well as on the Somme, and Australian soldiers are fighting shoulder to shoulder with the brave sons of Italy in support of a noble cause.

June 28 has been set apart by the authorities as Italian Red Cross Day. It is hoped that a large sum will be raised. All the money will be sent to the Italian Red Cross to mark the appreciation which the people of New South Wales feel for the heroic deeds and sufferings of the people of Italy in the present war.

GRAYTHWAITE.

HOSTEL FOR SEVERE CASES.

On Wednesday afternoon, at Graythwaite, North Sydney, the chairman of the executive of the Red Cross Society (Mr. J. O. Fairfax), accompanied by Miss Gladys Owen, Mrs Shepheard Laidley, Mrs. John MacKay, and Mrs. MacKinnon, met the representatives of the Red Cross branches of the northern suburbs, at the invitation of the house committee. Mrs. Cecil Hordern, the hon. secretary of Graythwaite, introduced the speakers, and an outline was given of the scheme for the use of Graythwaite as a hostel for severe cases of sickness and wounds.

The chairman made it clear that the management of the home was to remain in the hands of those who had already done such excellent work. Miss Gladys Owen, from her close personal touch with Randwick Hospital, was able to define the class of patients who would be accommodated, and her speech was listened to with great attention. Mrs. Laidley and Mrs. MacKinnon drew attention to the splendid work of the matron and nursing staff, and the two voluntary aid detachments of North Sydney, under Miss Playfair and Miss Grace Cunningham.

Mrs. John MacKay made an appeal to the branches to help to raise the money necessary for the additions to the home, and a hearty response from those present was the result. The representatives from Manly, Neutral Bay, North Sydney, Willoughby, Naremburn, Chatswood, Cremorne, and Hunter's Hill promised help in the name of their branches.

There was hearty applause when Mrs. Hordern said that the North Sydney branch of the War Chest had already arranged to hold a fete in the grounds of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron for the same cause.

DOCTORS AND LODGES.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

Experiences of metropolitan and country medical men in lodge practice were related to-day to Judge Wasley, sitting as a Royal Commission to inquire into a dispute between the Victorian branch of the B.M.A. and the friendly societies.

Mr. Love, on behalf of the societies, admitted that in some societies there were members receiving over £312 a year, who claimed medical benefits. Some societies had no members receiving this sum, and no members getting medical benefits had incomes of £1000 and over.

Dr. John Francis Wilkinson, Collins-street, in relating his experiences as a lodge doctor at Bright, 20 years ago, stated that one lodge patient was a man who took £50,000 out of a mine. After that youngsters used to get fed up on lemonade and ginger beer, and were always requiring attendance. (Laughter.)

The Commission adjourned till to-morrow.

TINPLATE SHORTAGE.

EMPLOYEES PUT OFF.

Mr. London, secretary to the Pastrycooks and Biscuit Makers' Union, said yesterday that a large firm of biscuit manufacturers at Camperdown had put off about 80 hands, in consequence of the shortage of tin plates.

These employees had been engaged on Imperial orders. The firm had explained that they were compelled to put those hands off on account of some shipments of tin plates, which were coming forward, not having arrived.

TROOPS ARRIVE SAFE.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

It was announced by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) to-day that troops embarked at Sydney on March 21 and 22 last arrived safely at their destination.

KITCHENER FLAG FUND.

The last rally to be held in connection with the Kitchen Flag Fund will commence at 3 o'clock to-day, when Miss Muriel Starr will take her accustomed place on the Recruiting Stand in Martin-place. She will be assisted by the Hawaiian boys, and members of the "Bird of Paradise" company.

This is the last day of the fund, and the Gallipoli Memorial Band is once again giving up some of its regular time to help with the rally.

Red Cross branches are requested to return all books of tickets unsold and butts of all sold tickets for the Kitchener Flag Art Union to the hon. secretary, Kitchener Flag Fund, c/o The Australia Day Committee, Dalton House, 115 Pitt-street. All butts and tickets must be in before Monday, June 10.

WAR NOTES.

GERMAN DRIVE ACROSS THE AISNE.

The later details regarding the enemy's drive across the Aisne, between Reims and Soissons, leave no doubt as to the effective nature of his renewed offensive effort. The fact that he has advanced over a dozen miles at the centre and has also made considerable progress on both wings, is sufficient indication that the blow was carefully prepared and ably executed. It is certainly an additional proof of that excellent staff work on the part of the enemy which the Allied commanders have not failed to recognise in the past. The country over which he has advanced is of a nature likely to impede progress and to favour the defence. Not only had he to win the strong defensive positions which the Allies had gained by hard fighting on the northern side of the Aisne, but he also had to overcome that river obstacle and force its passage on a fairly wide front in the face of strenuous opposition from the high ground to the southward. When it is remembered that the country southward of the Aisne attains an elevation of about 400 feet above the valley floor, his task of forcing the stream on an eighteen mile front, winning the southern slopes, and driving the spear-head of his attack another five miles on southwards across the intervening plateau to the valley of the Vesle can be appreciated. In addition to this, however, the impetus of his forward rush has carried his front across the second river obstacle at places, as he mentions in his communique that he has succeeded in rushing three corps across the Vesle, and the French admit that the fighting has continued with various fluctuations on the southern bank of that stream.

ENEMY'S OFFENSIVE TACTICS.

Some of the critics suggest that the offensive revealed nothing startling in the way of new methods of attack, and the manner in which his advance has progressed up to the present suggests that he is proceeding along lines similar in many respects to those which he has followed in the past. Particularly strong infantry attacks following a comparatively short bombardment developed a weakness in the Allied line through which he has been pushing with all speed. The Allies have replied by the same method of defence which they have adopted in the past. This is to maintain strong pressure on the flanks while selling ground as dearly as possible in the centre. If the flanks can manage to hold out the enemy's position must be limited, or he must, if he continues his advance at the centre, be compelled to occupy a salient of a somewhat dangerous character. In order to avoid this the enemy, after driving his wedge into the Allied line, concentrates upon the task of relieving the pressure on the flanks. Upon his ability to succeed in this depends the complete development of his initial success. This now appears to be the main task in front of the Germans along the Aisne front. The point of their wedge has been firmly driven into the Allied line, but similar difficult country to that over which their troops have already passed lies ahead of the most southerly point of their front near Fismes on the Vesle. Throughout the 15 miles between Fismes and the Marne the country is all in favour of the defenders. The Germans are not likely to attempt to push too far forward into the difficult country on a narrow front, and they must direct their efforts towards widening this front by overcoming the pressure on the flanks.

SOISSONS AND REIMS.

In the present offensive the flanks are marked by the two important towns of Soissons, on the Allied left, and Reims on the right. Against both of these important towns the enemy is now directing very severe pressure. Soissons, immediately to the southward of which is the junction of three important railways, is already directly menaced. Although, at the time of writing, the report that it had been captured has not been confirmed officially, it is clear from both German and French communiques that the enemy is already on the outskirts of the town. Much depends upon the ability of the Allies to hold it, as it is a communication centre of no small importance, the railway junction at the southern side of the town being the meeting place of three important lines. One of these connects with Compiegne in the west; another joins up with Reims in the east, and the third connects with Paris in the south-west. Reims, on the Allied right, is a much more important road and rail centre, though its value has no doubt been greatly reduced by reason of its close proximity to the firing line during the past three and a half years. It remains, however, the meeting point of numerous roads leading from the Verdun, Argonne, and Champagne fronts, and connecting up with other centres behind the Allied line. At present the menace to Reims is not as pronounced as is the threat to Soissons. Thanks to the strong defence of the British right during the enemy's attacks on Monday the line immediately above Reims did not give way suddenly. The fact that the old front line fell sharply away to the south-east from Berry-au-Bac, on the Aisne, and passed close to the eastern side of Reims, means that an advance, such as that which the enemy is making westward of the city, must, if continued, draw Reims into an awkward Allied salient. Its ultimate fate probably depends upon the ability of the British to hold the heights between the Vesle, near Reims, and the Aisne canal. This portion of the line has already yielded ground to the enemy's pressure, and the position on this north-western side of Reims will be watched with some uneasiness during the next few days.

AMERICAN TROOPS' LOCAL GAIN.

It is interesting to note that while the enemy has been delivering his important blow between Soissons and Reims, the American troops have carried out their first operation of importance since they were moved to the new front affected by the enemy's 1918 offensive. The attack which they delivered along a front of one and a quarter miles, and which resulted in the capture of the village of Cantigny and of two hundred German prisoners, is probably the first operation of the kind yet attempted by them in France. It was, of course, only a minor operation, and must not be magnified into anything in the nature of an attempt to divert the enemy's attention from his main operations elsewhere. It was purely a local attack, but as such it appears to have been a very successful affair. Cantigny is situated about 3½ miles north-west of Montdidier, on the front of the big salient which the enemy developed towards Amiens as a result of his advance since March 21 last. It is situated on a spur of high ground on the western side of the river Doms, which flows northward from Montdidier and joins the Avre about halfway between the latter town and Moreuil. It will be remembered that, after he had crossed these two streams, the enemy made a special endeavour to push westward, with a view to cutting the railway connecting Amiens and Clermont, but was prevented from doing so owing to the determined nature of the French resistance on the high ground westward of the stream. The recapture of Cantigny by the Americans presses the enemy farther back towards the western slopes leading up from the river, and improves the Allied line on this particular sector south-eastward of Amiens. The enemy has recognised the significance of this local success by delivering at least two heavy counter-attacks, but, up to the present, the Americans have held on to the ground gained.

PRICE FIXING.

LISTS TO BE EXHIBITED.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Minister in charge of price fixing (Mr. Massy Greene) stated to-night that he had decided to issue regulations shortly compelling storekeepers and others selling goods of which the prices had been fixed to exhibit a list in the window of the shop, and also on the counter where the goods were purchased, a notice, which would be supplied by the Government, setting forth the prices which had been fixed. It was thought that by this means effectual policing of the price-fixing regulations would be obtained.

GERMANS ADVANCE

BEYOND THE AISNE

ALLIES DEFENDING REIMS

LONDON, May 29.

The Germans in the centre of their attack have advanced over a dozen miles.

They have crossed the Vesle River between Soissons and Reims, capturing Braine and Fismes.

An unofficial report from London, via Vancouver, says Soissons has fallen.

The arrival of French reserves is now altering the character of the battle, and it is believed the worst is over.

The Germans say their prisoners now number 25,000, including two generals.

OFFICIAL STORY OF BATTLE.

A French communique, issued on Tuesday night stated: On Monday night and to-day the enemy again profiting by his numerical superiority made fresh efforts to accentuate his drive southwards and towards Soissons. Our troops on the left counter-attacked vigorously, and stopped the German advance. We shattered attacks on the heights of Hen-ville on to Margival, from Vregny to north-east of Soissons, and on the hills in the region of Ciry, Salesogne, and Vasseny, which immediately dominate the valley of the Vesle to the south.

In the centre, where the enemy made his principal effort, the battle is developing with sustained violence on the line of the Vesle, which the Germans succeeded in crossing this morning at several points, notably in the region of Bazoches and Fismes.

On the right the British, on St. Thierry ridge, resisted assaults of the enemy, who seems to have suffered particularly heavy losses.

A communique on Wednesday stated: During the night the German drive, supported by the arrival of fresh divisions, increased notably on the two wings in the direction of Soissons and Reims. On the left we retired fighting foot by foot to the outskirts, east of Soissons, where the battle continues bitterly.

On the right Franco-British troops after an energetic defence on the massif of St. Thierry have withdrawn slowly south, and south-east from these heights, where they are holding on between the Vesle and the Aisne Canal. In the centre fighting has continued with various fluctuations on the south bank of the Vesle, the heights of which our troops are defending with admirable bravery.

The artillery duel continues lively on both banks of the Meuse, in the Woevre, and the sector of Embermesnil (Lorraine). A series of hostile raids north of Bezonvaux, in the region of Badonvillers, near the Rhine-Rhone Canal, failed under our fire.

A further French communique adds that the Germans have reached the outskirts of Soissons.

THE GERMAN REPORTS.

(Admiralty—Per Wireless Press.)

A German communique on Tuesday stated: On Monday morning we penetrated the French lines between Voormezele and Locre, capturing over 300 prisoners.

The Crown Prince's attack south of Laon was completely successful, defeating the Franco-English divisions.

General von Boehm's army stormed and captured the Chemin-des-Dames, whose long ridge, which we evacuated for strategic purposes last autumn, is again in our hands.

Our infantry after a tremendous artillery preparation crossed the Ailette, between Vauxaillon and Craonne, and penetrated the English lines further east, between Corbeny and the Aisne. The occupants of the trenches were completely surprised and generally offered slight resistance.

In the early hours of the morning we stormed Pinon, Chavignon, Fort Malmaison, Courtecon, Cerny, Winterberg, Craonne, Villerberg, and fortified works near and north of Berry-au-Bac. Towards afternoon, after steady fighting, we reached the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac, capturing Vailly. The attack was continued in the afternoon.

We are on the heights between Vauxaillon and Vailly near Neuville, Laffaux, and north of Conde. We crossed the Aisne carrying the battle into an area untouched since 1914. We drove out the enemy from fortified wooded heights on the south bank of the river. We reached the heights north of the Vesle.

General von Below threw out the enemy from strong positions between Sapigneul and Brimont back across the Aisne-Marne Canal.

We stormed Cormicy, Cauroy, and Loivre on the west bank of the canal. Up to the present we have captured 15,000 prisoners.

Fighting activity has revived between the Meuse and Mosel, and in Lorraine. Advances into enemy lines brought in 150 Franco-Americans.

A German official report on Wednesday stated: Increased fighting activity continued from the Yser to the Oise. The enemy during a local advance westward of Montdidier penetrated Cantigny.

Generals von Boehm and von Below on Tuesday victoriously continued their attack, defeating the Franco-British reserves which were rushed up. General von Larisch, after repelling a French counter-attack, captured Ternysorny ridge and the heights north-eastward of Soissons. His victorious troops after hard fighting broke the enemy's resistance on the Plateau Conde, storming Fort Conde and also capturing Vregny and Missy. We occupied heights westward of the Ciry.

Three corps crossed the Vesle, capturing Braine and Fismes. We are standing on the heights southward of the Vesle.

We stormed and captured hills north-eastward of Prouilly. We captured Villers-Franquex (five miles north-north-west of Reims) and Courcy (four miles north of Reims), and are now fighting for the heights of Thierry.

The prisoners total 25,000, including one English and one French general.

FRENCH RESERVES COMING IN.

Some Parisian critics opine that the Crown Prince's operation originally was a big demonstration, but owing to the success of the first shock it was changed to a thorough offensive.

The heights south of the Vesle form an excellent defensive position. The French reserves are now altering the character of the battle, and the enemy's advance will be blocked as at Noyon and Montdidier, and before Amiens. The enemy by advancing 12½ miles in the centre has made a risky salient for himself.

The correspondent of the "Morning Post" on the French front says the attack between Vauxaillon and Brimont was delivered with extreme violence. It was known for a considerable time that the Germans had a large force of reserves massed north-east of Laon.

The offensive was without any original features. The artillery preparation was of short duration, but of extreme violence. The attackers were only brought to the line at the last moment. They were moved with utmost secrecy until 25 divisions were massed on a 25 miles front. Using overwhelming numbers the Germans obtained the inevitable result, forcing back the Allies. The army is absolutely confident of its ability to arrest the attack as it stopped the March offensive.

The "Petit Journal" states: On both wings the French and British victoriously resisted terrific assaults, and barred the enemy's passage to Soissons and Reims. British divisions on the right wing defending the sector between Jonchery and Brimont maintained all their positions in the neighbouring heights of Fort St. Thierry and inflicted heavy losses. Thanks to British stubbornness, Reims was saved, though the enemy reckoned after the first day's success easily to capture the city.

The "Petit Parisien" says that the Germans advanced 12½ miles in the centre, but only a few miles on the right and left wings.

British and French military circles take a calm view of the new battle, and express the opinion that General Foch will not be induced to weaken the forces at his command, which must deal with the enemy's main attack. It is by no means certain that the real offensive has been launched on the Aisne.

General Berthaut, however, writing in the "Petit Parisien," expresses the opinion that this time we are in the presence of the German offensive. Operation on a front of 60 kilometres cannot be a diversion. Nevertheless the enemy has enormous reserves, and strategy may be planned on a huge scale.

Other critics say the first shock of the Aisne was extremely heavy. The Germans returned to the assault again and again, but the Allies' front was unbroken at the end of the day, as sufficient reserves were present.

The frontal attack on the Craonne Ridge promised little owing to the declivities in the ground and the paucity of good roads across the valley. The chief assault was between Juvincourt and the Aisne, most of which sector was held by the British troops, who were pressed back to Pont-Arcy. This turning the flank of the ridge compelled the French also to fall back, which they did in echelon in good order. The British troops at Bermericourt withstood the pressure. The Germans hoped by breaking the line to throw the French holding the ridge into confusion, and make a great capture of prisoners. In this hope they were disappointed, as the British retirement was dogged and slow.

ENEMY'S METHODS.

Apart from the now customary German method of swift and secret concentration of special troops, an initial short fierce bombardment, and a sudden rush of dense masses, the Germans appear to have relied largely on tanks and machine-guns to assist the rapid onrush. Some correspondents consider that the secret of their success lies in their ability to outnumber the defence at selected points of attack.

ATTACK IN FLANDERS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs telegraphs: It is now fairly clear that the German attack in Flanders was not a serious effort to advance, but a minor action, aiming for the recovery of ground lost on the 20th, also a demonstration coinciding with the Aisne battle. German prisoners believe that this is the case.

Mr. Gibbs recalls that the British 8th, 21st, 25th, and 50th divisions, which were engaged on the Aisne, and who have borne the brunt of many recent battles, covered themselves with glory.

MADSEN MACHINE-GUN.

Lord Beresford has given notice of a series of questions in the House of Lords respecting the manufacture of the Madsen machine-gun, a Danish invention, which is claimed to be superior in point of weight to the Lewis, Hotchkiss, or Vickers guns; also whether Sir Douglas Haig asked for the immediate supply of 2000 Madsens.

"John Bull" states that a factory for the manufacture of the gun was completed in Britain in 1914, but was converted for other war purposes by a War Office official, chiefly on the ground that the production of ammunition could not keep pace with the manufacture of the guns; also that the war would be over before any considerable output of the guns could be obtained.

Mr. Winston Churchill (Minister for Munitions) stated in the House of Commons that the Army Council and General Headquarters in France had examined the Madsen gun, and decided against its adoption, chiefly because the Lewis gun alone can be supplied in the enormous numbers required.

Sir Edward Carson asked if there was any danger of the gun being handed over to Germany. Mr. Churchill said the Germans would have little difficulty in securing the gun if they desired.

FOE'S HUGE FORCES.

"WORST NOW OVER."

LONDON, May 29.

Mr. G. H. Perris, correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" on the French front, says that General von Hindenburg has scored another spectacular success. After three hours' bombardment, largely with gas-shells, the attack began at dawn, the Germans outnumbering the defenders from fourfold to fivefold. An attempt to hold the Chemin-des-Dames would have meant the massacre of our troops before the reserves reached them. The only thing was to retire steadily while punishing the enemy as much as possible.

The enemy used the same methods as in the March offensive, with some improvements. They used their reserves prodigally, and the interior lines of communication skilfully for throwing masses suddenly and unexpectedly on the chosen sector. Only seven German divisions held 25 miles of the attacking front until the eve of the battle.

Though the exact number of divisions employed in the attack is not known, yet there were probably 25, equivalent to over 250,000 men. These figures are noteworthy, since the Germans on March 21 had 17 divisions on a 40 miles front, prior to the battle. They used 34 for the attack. Probably they used denser masses on Monday, because they intended to carry the Aisne heights in a single rush. In the circumstances the enemy necessarily won some ground. With sound tactical sense they directed the heaviest assault on the eastern end near Craonne. It was soon evident that the line was untenable and the whole line was in danger of being turned.

The attackers, who included some of General von Hutier's specially trained units, employed in the March offensive, also two Guards' divisions and other crack formations, got forward quickly at heavy cost. The Anglo-French retired in orderly fashion, firing continuously.

Mr. Perris in a later message says the French reserves have begun to arrive on the Aisne front. It is believed the worst is over.

A MENACE AHEAD.

THE AUSTRO-GERMAN TREATY.

UNITED FOR FUTURE WAR.

LONDON, May 29.

The correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" at Milan says the "Deutsche Volkszeitung" has published the Austro-German treaty. It has seven clauses. The first forms a close military alliance for twenty-five years, during which "both parties pledge themselves to employ the entire strength of their peoples for military purposes. The Allies shall devote all their care to have their armies fully prepared to enter an eventual future conflict at their maximum strength. Only thus can future war be of brief duration." The clause ends:—"Had the armies of both Allies been in this condition in 1914, the war would have ended long ago."

The second clause provides that all males capable of bearing arms shall receive proper and thorough military instruction, and special formations shall be provided for the production of arms and ammunition.

The third, fourth, and fifth clauses provide that regulations for the organisation, instruction, and employment of the Allied troops shall be drawn up on a common principle, of which the initiative is left principally to Germany. The formations of troops in various States in Germany and Austria-Hungary shall constitute one sole army. Armaments shall be on a uniform basis, and supplies shall be drawn from the nearest depot instead of the home base. The Allied troops shall be brought into contact with each other for the purpose of educating them in mutual esteem, love, and appreciation.

The sixth and seventh clauses provide that preparations for future wars shall be made in common understanding between the General Staffs. All preparatory economic measures connected with eventual war shall be taken beforehand in time of peace. The construction of all railway lines shall be undertaken in common on a unified plan.

TRANSPORT SUNK.

A HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

LONDON, May 29.

The Admiralty state that the transport Leasowe Castle (9737 tons) was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean last Sunday. Nine of the ship's company are missing, and are believed to have been drowned, including the captain and two wireless operators; also 13 military officers and 79 other ranks.

[The Leasowe Castle was built in 1916 by Cammell, Laird, and Co., Ltd., at Birkenhead, for the Union Castle Mail Steamship Company. Her measurements, as given by Lloyds, were:—Length, 488ft; breadth, 58ft 1in; and depth, 24ft 7in.]

DANISH SHIPPING.

GERMAN ULTIMATUM.

The Danish shipping mission has arrived in Washington. It is learned from them that Germany has virtually issued an ultimatum to Denmark to withdraw immediately from the Allied trade 400,000 tons of Danish bottoms offered in exchange for needed products from America and England. Negotiations are being continued.

EPIDEMIC IN SWEDEN.

A Copenhagen message says that Sweden is suffering from an epidemic resembling dropsy, which is supposed to be due to insufficient food. There are several thousand cases.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

Reports from Tokio received in Tientsin state that the Chinese and Japanese Governments are not publishing the terms of the recent agreement, owing to strategic considerations, but have communicated them confidentially to the Allies.

PAN-GERMAN AIMS.

ANNEXATION DEMANDED.

LONDON, May 29.

Official reports have reached Washington that the pan-Germans have proposed new peace terms, including the retention of Belgium, Poland, Esthonia, Lithuania, Courland, Livonia, the Baltic provinces, the restoration of the colonies, cession from France of the Longwy and Briey ore basin, and an indemnity "commensurate with the enormous German sacrifices and losses."

A message from Amsterdam says that the "Westphaelische Gazette" urges the Government to stimulate public opinion on colonial expansion. It declares that Austria must get extensive colonies after the war, especially in Northern Africa.

MESOPOTAMIA.

TURKS CLAIM KURKUK.

A Turkish communique states: We occupied Kurkuk, in Mesopotamia. The British withdrew southward.

FINNISH SOCIALISTS.

MASSACRED WHOLESALE.

A Russian wireless message says the Central Committee of the Finnish Workmen protests against the "White" terrorism in Finland. It is stated that 70,000 citizens, the majority being Social Democrats, including 30,000 civilians, have been imprisoned and brutally treated.

A ghastly wholesale slaughter of prisoners has commenced by Finnish troops assisted by the Germans, 150 women prisoners having been killed in one day in Lahsti. Many sisters of mercy of the Red Guards were killed without trial. A field court-martial and commanders of detachments are still condemning persons to death en masse. Although civil war is over, the Finnish proletariat has called out to the civilians of the world in the name of humanity to stop this mad "White" terrorism.

ENEMY ADVANCE BEYOND THE AISNE.

The dotted line represents the front prior to the latest German offensive against the heights above the Aisne. The arrows indicate the direction of the enemy's advance, as indicated by cablegrams received up to the time the map was prepared. The small inset map shows the relation of the offensive to the whole of the Western front.

FLANDERS FIGHTING.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting on Tuesday night, stated: Franco-British counter-attacks early this morning re-established our line east of Dickebusch Lake. We took several prisoners. It is known that four German divisions were engaged in the attacks on Monday in this sector, and as far south as Locre. Heavy losses were inflicted on these divisions. The Allied line was maintained at all points.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting on Wednesday at noon stated: We successfully raided south-east of Arras, capturing prisoners. We also secured a few prisoners west of Merville. We repulsed raids at Givenchy, Lens, and La Bassee, also an attack on a post on the Ypres-Comines Canal.

Sir Douglas Haig on Wednesday evening reported: We drove off a night raiding party in the neighbourhood of Beaumont-Hamel. The French completely repulsed a local attack northward of Kemmel.

THE BELGIAN FRONT.

A Belgian communique, issued on Wednesday, stated: Enemy artillery activity is specially lively in our back areas. Many civilian casualties have occurred in the bombarded localities.

CANTIGNY RETAKEN.

AMERICAN SUCCESS.

A communique from the American Army in France on the Picardy front states: American troops attacked on a front of a mile and a quarter, and captured the village of Cantigny, with 200 German prisoners. We inflicted severe losses in killed and wounded on the Germans. The American casualties were relatively small.

A French communique on Tuesday night stated: West of Montdidier the Americans, supported by tanks, brilliantly carried, on a front of two kilometres, the salient of Cantigny, also the village which the enemy had strongly fortified, capturing 170 prisoners and a quantity of material.

German counter-attacks in the afternoon against Cantigny completely failed. The artillery duel continues with great activity on the right of the Meuse, and at several points on the Lorraine front.

A French report on Wednesday stated: West of Montdidier the Americans shattered two enemy counter-attacks at Cantigny.

STOLEN FOOD CARDS.

Forty people have been arrested in London for stealing food cards. The arrests were made at a coffee house near the printing works where the food cards were printed. It is stated that many of those arrested were employed there.

WAR IN THE AIR.

ALLIED ACHIEVEMENTS.

British military despatches received in Washington state that the Allied airmen on the West front brought down or destroyed 252 aeroplanes between May 16 and May 24.

A German prisoner states that British bombs on Douai early in May killed 400 Germans and wounded 300.

In his aviation report on Wednesday evening, Sir Douglas Haig stated: The weather was fine and cloudy yesterday, and visibility was not good for a full day's flying. We dropped 16 tons of bombs on various objectives, including billets between Armentieres and Lens, and on Bruges docks. We brought down 15 German aeroplanes, and drove down three. Two British machines are missing. We dropped heavy bombs at night on Zeebrugge Lock and Bruges docks; also on a great number of the enemy's dumps and billets, totalling 21 tons. All our aeroplanes returned.

Hostile night-bombers were active. One Gotha was forced to descend in our lines, and the three occupants were taken prisoners. Our long-distance night-bombers were very active, and dropped four to five tons of bombs on chemical works in Mannheim, the railway station at Landau, the electric power station at Kreuzwald, as well as railway stations at Metz, Sablon, and Courcelles. Very large explosions occurred, and one British machine is missing.

ROUEN DISTRICT BOMBED.

A French official message says: Enemy aeroplanes were espied at midnight on Tuesday west of Rouen. They were violently attacked by our anti-aircraft batteries. One dropped bombs in the Rouen district. One person was killed and four were wounded.

CROWN PRINCE'S SUCCESS.

An Amsterdam report says the German Emperor, who is watching the battle from the Crown Prince's headquarters at Saarbrucken, telegraphed to the Empress, saying: "Wilhelm attacked the British and French at the Chemin-des-Dames. Fritz has reached the Vesle. To-morrow we will go further. God will give us a brilliant victory, and will help us further."

PRISONERS IN GERMANY.

Lord Newton (Assistant Under-Secretary to the Foreign Office) stated in the House of Lords, when referring to negotiations regarding prisoners, that the German Government had already suggested a meeting at the Hague to discuss matters of acute difficulty which had arisen, and the British Government had accepted the suggestion, on condition that under the scheme the exchange of prisoners should be amongst the subjects discussed.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, in the House of Commons, said Dominion prisoners in Germany must be included in the coming negotiations, and treated on the same basis as English prisoners. The Government hitherto had failed to appreciate the depth of feeling throughout the Empire on this question.

AUSTRALIAN AIRMEN KILLED.

Lieut. Cyril Whelan, son of Mr. Albert Whelan, entertainer, and Lieut. Levy, son of Mr. Bert Levy, the Sydney caricaturist, were killed in an aeroplane collision in England.

AUSTRALIAN'S ESCAPE.

Quarter-master Sergeant Edwards, of Mount Bryan, 51st Battalion, who served in Gallipoli, and was wounded, and captured at Mouquet Farm, in September, 1916, has arrived in London after remarkable adventures. He is the first Australian to escape to Switzerland.

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT.

SHIPMENT TO AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, May 29.

The United States Government is considering proposals by Australia for the shipment of Australia's surplus wheat to America. The Government is anxious to obtain the wheat if shipping can be secured. Present prospects for the American harvest are good, but adverse weather may unfavourably affect the prospects. Whether the harvest is good or unfavourable, the Australian surplus would be most acceptable, and would enable larger shipments to be made to the Allies.

One proposal is the utilisation of the ships ordered from Japan when the vessels are en route to America. Another scheme submitted by Australia provides for an adjustment of shipping whereby practically all fast Pacific ships will be diverted to the Atlantic, while the slower vessels in the Atlantic will be used for safe Pacific routes. It is recognised that speedy ships are the greatest protection against submarines, whereas increased numbers of slow ships could safely and effectively convey wheat to America.

It is believed certain shipping interests are disinclined to support the latter scheme.

Mr. Hoover, the United States Food Administrator, interviewed by the Australian Press Association, said he believed that trade between America and Australia would undergo a vast expansion after the war. "America," he said, "wants many products of which Australia has a surplus. We are endeavouring to work out a scheme whereby the Australian wheat surplus may be brought to the United States. Nearly all the ships which America has ordered from Japan are loaded to full capacity when they leave Japan, and, therefore, will be unable to pick up Australian wheat. We are willing to utilise for this purpose any slow steamer or sailing vessels, but at present practically none is divertible.

"We must remember that the Argentine has a large surplus of wheat, which can be shipped to New York by a route a thousand miles shorter than the route from Australia to San Francisco. Normally, California's consumption of wheat greatly exceeds the production. This year's deficiency is 8,000,000 bushels, but, owing to the country's abundant harvest, this can be easily obtained from the middle and western States.

"I do not think Australian wheat can be shipped on a large scale immediately, but in four to six months, when shipping has improved, this should be made the first call on available tonnage.

"I also am hopeful that Australia and New Zealand meat will be sent to America as soon as ships are procurable. The meat could be sent to the western ports, also eastern, via the Panama Canal."

Mr. Hoover added: "I know Australia and its wonderful possibilities, and expect it to loom large in the world trade of the future."

BRITISH WAR BONDS.

ASSISTANCE OF BANKS.

In view of the payment on Saturday of over £50,000,000 interest on war loans, Mr. Bonar Law has arranged with the banks in the hope of securing its reinvestment in war bonds. The banks have agreed not to give special rates on deposits, also to give their customers generous terms in advances against war bonds, and have undertaken to persuade their customers to reinvest their interest in war bonds.

Mr. Bonar Law points out that the bank deposits are steadily increasing, and says that another long dated loan or a higher rate of interest is improbable. The banks themselves have agreed to reinvest in war bonds all their dividends in Government stock, payable during the week. The weekly returns of war bond investments lately have shown a reaction. There have been less than half £25,000,000, which is required weekly.

PLANNING THE WAR.

DIPLOMATIC REVELATION.

A New York message states that Mr. Henry Morgenthau, formerly United States Ambassador in Turkey, writes in the June issue of the American "World's Work" saying that Baron Wangenheim, who was German Ambassador to Turkey, told him that the German Emperor summoned him to Berlin for an Imperial conference, which was held at Potsdam on July 5, 1914. The Emperor presided, and nearly all the ambassadors, von Moltke, von Tirpitz, bankers, and captains of industry were present. The Kaiser asked each if they were ready for war. All answered yes except the financiers, who said they must have two weeks in which to sell foreign securities and make loans.

Mr. Morgenthau points out that the Servian ultimatum from Austria was sent on July 22, about two weeks after the conference, and adds that the records of the stock exchanges the world over show that German financiers used the interval profitably.

TILLAGE IN BRITAIN.

Since 1916 it is officially estimated that 2,500,000 acres have been added to the area of tilled land in England and Wales, 300,000 acres in Scotland, and 1,500,000 in Ireland.

The wheat acreage shows an increase of 39 per cent., oats 35, and potatoes 50. If the yield reaches the average it is estimated the next harvest will supply 40 weeks' supply of bread, also an additional 500,000 tons of animal foodstuffs and 250,000 tons of oaten hay.

The harvest of 1916 supplied only 11 weeks' supply of bread, and the 1917 harvest 13 weeks.

IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT.

The Royal Colonial Institute, by a large majority, passed Earl Brassey's motion,—"That the separation of Imperial matters from the domestic affairs of the Motherland is urgently necessary, and that the settlement of the future Constitution of the United Kingdom is an essential preliminary to the discussion of the future government of the Empire at a special Imperial Conference at the conclusion of the war."

Lord Forrest was elected a vice-president in place of Mr. Deakin, whose resignation was accepted with deep regret.

ENEMY FIRM'S DEBT.

The Zinc Corporation's report mentions that, though the company's claim against Aron Hirsch and Son finally was decided in the company's favour, the British Courts refuse to order a distribution of Hirsch's assets in Britain until after the war; but the company is pressing the Public Trustee to distribute the Australian assets.

[The claim referred to was contained in two actions (which were consolidated) brought by the Zinc Corporation against Aron Hirsch and Son, of Halberstadt, Germany, for the balance of purchase money due under contracts made in 1908 and 1909 for the purchase of zinc concentrates from the plaintiff's mines at Broken Hill. Judgment was given for the plaintiff corporation for £41,897 10s 9d in one action and £42,221 15s 9d in the other, with costs in each case. An appeal by the defendants to the High Court of Australia was dismissed, and leave to appeal was refused by the Privy Council.]

LATE WAR NEWS.

SOISSONS LOST.

THREAT TO REIMS.

LONDON, May 30.

A French communique on Wednesday night stated: The battle assumed a particularly violent character on the left wing in the region of Soissons. We evacuated the town, of which we hold the exits. The battle is continuing west and south-east of Soissons, on the plateau between Belleu Sept Monts, Ambries, and Chacrise.

In the centre, while we gave ground under pressure in the region of Loupergne, to the north of Ferrent Ardenois, the Franco-British troops further east succeeded in maintaining their positions on the line of Brouillet, Savigny, and Tilloy.

On the right the troops covering Reims fell back behind the Aisne and Marne canal to the north-west of the town.

BITTER FIGHTING.

The German attack at Festubert was beaten. The British are holding the Germans north-west of Reims and bitter fighting continues.

M. Clemenceau (Premier) narrowly escaped capture during his visit to the front.

CENTRE OF ATTACK.

The centre of the German main attack is now at Vezilly, eighteen miles south of the Chemin des Dames.

FRENCH CONFIDENT.

A Paris message says the French High Command is confident of being able to stem the German advance shortly.

THE AMERICANS.

General Pershing's communique announces that American troops consolidated the positions captured in the Cantigny salient. Three counter-attacks by the Germans in an attempt to regain their lost terrain were completely repulsed.

THE OUTLOOK.

Brigadier-General Maurice, writing in the "Daily Chronicle," says: According to the latest estimates the German reserves on the West front number eighty divisions, of which seventy are between Reims and the coast. Assuming it to be true that he drew sixteen for the Aisne attack, and others since it began, it is doubtful if he has drawn in more than a third of his battle reserve. We must therefore expect further developments.

The enemy may well be tempted by his success to draw more reserves, and aim at the Marne to cut the Paris—Chalons railway. Unless he reaches the Marne the advance southward will not materially affect the general situation. Moreover, in order to reach the Marne safety requires him to widen his base. He must secure Reims and Soissons, which apparently he is trying to do.

Reims ceased to have more than a sentimental value. Soissons was more important, because it links the Aisne and Somme battlefields, and its fall would enable the enemy to widen the attacking front towards Amiens or Paris. The real problem now is whether General Foch or the Crown Prince will be compelled to use up most reserves.

CO-OPERATION.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S APPEAL

President Wilson, in a public letter, called on the men, women, and children of the United States to pledge themselves to practise the utmost thrift and buy Government war savings stamps to help win the war. "The great results we seek," he says, "can only be obtained by the co-operation and participation of every member of the nation." The Government's war expenses for May, including loans to the Allies, will exceed £300,000,000. This is a record for any belligerent.

MACEDONIA.

A French communique states: There is great artillery activity along the whole front between Lake Doiran and Monastir, particularly in the regions of Makukovo and Vacovo.

ITALIAN SUCCESS.

MOUNTAIN FIGHTING.

LONDON, May 29.

Mr. Ward Price, official correspondent on the Italian front, telegraphs: The Alpini opened the fourth year of the war with a neat victory in mountains 10,000 feet high among jagged precipices and slopes, covered with snow and ice. It was the most difficult part of the formidable Italian mountain line where there had been no previous fighting during the whole course of the war. Consequently, the Austrians had fortified the peaks thoroughly, yet the Alpini roped together, with their rifles, bombs, and haversacks slung on their backs, climbing with their hands and feet, conquered Mounts Pesena and Zigos, and practically all Monticello in 48 hours' fighting. They took nearly 1000 prisoners, several guns, 14 trench-mortars, and 25 machine-guns. The fighting was of the most exciting description. Sometimes a crawling Alpini would lose his footing and his body would be found later among the rocks 1000 feet below.

Sometimes the Austrians rushed out from the redoubts and cut a rope, hurling an entire patrol to destruction. The mountain battle proceeded in the moonlight. The Alpini found further abandoned guns, also a huge cavern in which there were a further 120 Austrians, 40 of whom were wounded. The remainder were drunk, having staved in a cask of brandy.

RIGHTS OF SMALL NATIONS.

The State Department in Washington has officially expressed sympathy with the national aspirations of the Czechs, Slovacs, and Jugo Slavs for freedom, and endorsed the resolution passed by the Jugo Slav Congress held in Rome in April proclaiming the right of Austrian dominated races to establish their own nationality and attain full economic and political independence. It is believed the announcement will have a tremendous effect in Italy and Austria.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

Sir William Weir, President of the Air Board, will contest the Gravesend seat rendered vacant by the resignation of Sir Gilbert Parker owing to ill-health.

The Wansbeck by-election resulted as follows:—Muson (Coalition), 5814; Edwards (Labour), 5267.

The American Red Cross has accepted the British Red Cross' offer of a fully-equipped hospital with 500 beds, which will be erected at Windsor in the great park, by the King's permission.

The "Daily Chronicle" says: The Government is considering a scheme which will require all our younger munition workers to volunteer for work wherever required. If they refuse they may lose their exemption for service in the army.

JUDDITES TRIUMPH.

BOLSHEVIK PEACE MOTION.

CARRIED BY LABOUR COUNCIL.

The New South Wales Labour Council last night carried Mr. Judd's "anti-war" motion by 101 votes to 75. The proceedings were held in camera.

Mr. W. Morby (president) was in the chair, and Mr. Judd attended as the delegate from the Miscellaneous Workers' Union.

Mr. M'Namara (Small Arms Factory) moved the following amendment, which was seconded by Mr. O'Neill (Postal Sorters' Union), and defeated, 75 being in favour and 101 against:—

"That having heard the report of Mr. Morby, and recognising the necessity for harmony and unity amongst all sections of the community, this council is of the opinion that the only way to secure that harmony and unity is by both the State and Federal Governments and the Employers' Federation giving immediate effect to the promises made at the recent Governor-General's recruiting conference."

The council also elected Mr. Garden as secretary to the Labour Council, in succession to Mr. E. J. Kavanagh, M.L.C.

About 11 o'clock the delegates filed out of the large room at the Trades Hall cheering vociferously. Hundreds of strangers who gathered outside the hall doors hooted the president when he put in an appearance, and hurled at him all kinds of insulting remarks.

Mr. Morby, when seen subsequently by a reporter, refused to express an opinion. He said: "The motion as previously published in the Press and standing in the name of Mr. Judd was adopted to-night, as against an amendment."

Mr. Judd, when interviewed, said: "This will pave the way for the New South Wales A.L.P. conference, which will commence on Saturday next, and also the interstate A.L.P. conference, to decide on similar action. The attempt by the National party to split the Labour movement has thus proved a failure."

The amendment declared that the Labour Council declined to take part in recruiting, and that an armistice should be sought on all fronts.

MR. STOREY AND EXTREMISTS.

Referring to the meeting of extremists at the Trades Hall, Mr. Evans, general secretary to the A.L.P., said yesterday that Mr. Boote was reported as having demanded to know why Mr. Storey and Labour representatives were not present. Mr. Boote should know that it was no part of Mr. Storey's duty to attend meetings convened for Mr. Judd's supporters. He added: "Mr. Boote is also aware that there is a by-election campaign in the Upper Hunter, and that Mr. Storey's place is in the electorate, advocating the policy of his party. This knowledge renders Mr. Boote's dramatic question of "Where is Mr. Storey?" all the more unnecessary and inexcusable."

RECRUITING.

The official figures show that at the Central Recruiting Depot on Wednesday 35 men were accepted. The country returns added 52 men, making a total of 87 for the day.

Yesterday, between 1 and 2 o'clock, there was a recruiting meeting in Market-street, between George and Pitt streets. A motor car served as a platform from which appeals were made by Sergt.-major Banks, Sergt. Browne, and Private Martin. Three men responded while Private Martin was speaking. The three speakers asked those who were wavering to read the latest war news in the newspapers. "Surely," said one of them, "you must realise now that the Empire is in great danger, and that the freedom of Australia must be fought for with every available man."

Brigadier-General Lee, State Commandant, and Lieut.-Colonel Lorenzo, left for West Maitland yesterday to be present at the arrival of the "March to Freedom Column" at that centre.

"STRONG POSTS."

The town clerk of Newtown states that every effort is being made to organise a "strong post" in the city, to assist in welcoming home returning soldiers and in bidding farewell to those departing.

The 1st and 52nd Battalion Comforts Fund committee and workers have been allotted a "strong post" in Martin-place, close to Pitt-street, a spot adjacent to the Comforts Fund headquarters. Eighteen girls, who form the "Georgette" Patriotic Club, have also decided to establish a "strong post," and have at their own request been allotted a position outside Denison House, George-street.

The honorary organiser would be glad to hear of any bands and choirs willing to aid in the formation of "strong posts." Those who are willing to help are requested to communicate with Mr. Downes Johnson, Albert's Music Warehouse, King-street.

The hon. organiser, Mr. Downes Johnstone, states that a large number of returning soldiers will arrive in Sydney on Saturday morning next at 10.30. The procession will take place through the city, the usual route from Woolloomooloo wharf, Haig-avenue, Park-street, thence into George-street, Martin-place, Moore-street, Castlereagh-street, Bent-street to the buffet being taken.

Notice being short, this will serve to intimate to all "strong post" committees to assemble at 10.30 to welcome the troops.

Mr. Orchard, Minister of Recruiting, requests that all public companies, offices, and business houses along the line of route will decorate and beflag their premises to welcome the returning men.

CITY AND SUBURBAN MARCHES.

The "Marches to Freedom," which included North Sydney, Bondi, Darlinghurst, and Redfern, will be continued to-night in the Leichhardt district. Upwards of 300 returned soldiers and the West Sydney Brigade Cadets will parade Johnston-street, Parramatta-road, Young-street, Catherine-street, and Renwick-street. Recruiting speeches will be delivered at different points. Lidcombe and Auburn will be visited.

About 13 volunteers "followed the drum" during the Darlinghurst to Park-street march on Wednesday night. The District Guard Band supplied the music, and nearly 300 Boy Scouts, with their band, added to the spectacular effect. The march last night was in the Redfern district.

To-morrow afternoon the Parramatta troops will proceed to Hornsby, where they will be met at the station by the Mayor and leading citizens. After the reception the men will march to Hornsby Park, where a recruiting meeting will be held. The men will be entertained at dinner by the local Red Cross and Voluntary Aid Detachment.

On Sunday there will be a recruiting rally in Parramatta Park, which will be addressed by S.M. Urquhart, S.M. Coleman, Q.M.S. Judge, and Miss Evans.

While the march was suspended for a time on Tuesday at the top of William-street, three persons in the crowd handed in £1 each to Recruiting Officer Browne, for the purpose of insuring recruits. The money has been forwarded to the Public Trustee for that purpose.

Campsie has arranged for a military march on Monday night, commencing at 7.30. Troops to the number of over 100 will arrive by train and parade the town, halting at points where speeches will be made. The recruiting officer for the district reports that the residents are making arrangements to extend a cordial welcome.

SCHOOLS HELPING.

Mr. J. Ray, head master of the Public School, Leura, communicating with Captain Carmichael, M.C., says that the school has obtained a recruit for the "Carmichael Thousand." The volunteer is Mr. Jack Knight, and the school will insure him for the period of the war. This makes the 29th ex-pupil of the Leura school who has joined the colours.

MEETINGS.

To-day at 1 o'clock Sergt. Browne, Sergt. Watkins, Corpl. Stead, and Despatch Carrier Brown will be the Martin-place speakers. At noon Lieut. Doull, Sergt. Cole, Private Hanson, and Warrant Officer Day will speak at the Gas Works, Mortlake.

The following meetings will be held to-night—

Rockdale.—8 p.m., Mrs. Burrows, Pte. Finnie.

Kogarah.—8 p.m., Warrant-officer Mulready, Corpl. Phillips.

Haberfield.—Dalhousie-street, 8 p.m., Despatch-carrier Browne, Corpl. Delhm.

Summer Hill.—Lackey-street, 8 p.m., Lieut. Doull, Pte. Hanson, Corpl. Burns.

Burwood.—8 p.m., Warrant-officer Day, Sergt. Cole, Corpl. M'Kenzie.

Lidcombe.—7.30 p.m., Lieut. Church, Private Tart, Private Nutting.

Newtown Bridge.—8 p.m., Lieut. Littlejohn, and other returned soldiers.

March to Freedom (Leichhardt and Granville).—Meetings will be held as under:—Leichhardt, Johnston-street, Q.M.S. Judge, Sergt. Watkins, Private Barrington, Private M'Farland. Young-street, Sergt. Skinner, Q.M.S. Jones, Private Leary, Private Martin. Catherine-street, Sergt. Geoghan, Sergt.-major Coleman, Corpl. Stead, Private Eade, Corpl. Burns. Renwick-street, Gunner Bartlett, Mrs. Downe, Sergt. Roberts, Sergt.-major Urquhart, Sergt.-major Banks.

MEAT PRICES.

COMMISSION'S SECOND REPORT.

NEEDLESSLY HIGH IN SYDNEY

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

A further report by the Interstate Commission on the price of meat was tabled in the Federal Parliament to-day.

The report states that the question had been reopened at the request of the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes), so as "to provide an opportunity of placing fresh evidence before the commission." The evidence showed that the parties who asked for a reopening of the inquiry had not read the previous reports, and that they held mistaken opinions upon two important points, viz., the recommendation of the commission and its reasons.

In a summary of its conclusions, the commission states:—

(1) The sheep in the Commonwealth are greater in numbers than in 1913, while the number of cattle is about the same as in that period.

(2) Assuming normal seasons and conditions, the carrying capacity of the grazing land now occupied in the Commonwealth has been nearly reached.

(3) The present prices of meat for home consumption in New South Wales, Victoria, Tasmania, and South Australia are about 100 per cent. higher than the prices in 1913.

(4) The Imperial contract prices, after deducting 6½d a lb for freezing, are about 65 per cent. higher than the prices ruling in 1913, when the flocks and herds of the Commonwealth were about the same number as at present. If the meat slaughtered in that year had been sold at the prices now suggested the increased return to the grower would have been £13,500,000.

(5) In Queensland the Imperial contract prices, reduced by the arrangement with the State Government referred to under the heading "Imperial contract prices," are unquestionably accepted as satisfactory. In New South Wales export under the Imperial contract prices, which has never altogether ceased in either beef or mutton, has been resumed as to mutton on a fairly large scale. In Victoria the fair inference from the evidence is that the export of mutton and lamb will reach normal proportions in a few months' time.

(6) The Imperial contract price for wool, as compared with the pre-war prices, gives an increased annual return per sheep of not less than 4/ per head.

(7) Every pastoral witness questioned on the point during the reinvestigation admitted that the Imperial contracts prices would in normal seasons be payable to the produce. On these facts it seems to the Commission impossible to avoid the conclusion that, considering the Commonwealth as a unit, the home consumption equivalent of the Imperial contract prices would be fair to producers as a basis of prices for home consumption. If that conclusion be accepted the only question is, What adjustment, if any, should be made to meet the special circumstances of any State? As to Queensland and Western Australia, it is clear that no adjustment is necessary, and the home consumption equivalent of the Imperial contract prices could be fixed as the maximum wholesale prices for local supply. With regard to New South Wales, after full consideration of all the facts, the Commission is of the opinion that there also the same maximum prices might reasonably be adopted.

Assuming that the policy of price-fixing is to be applied to meat, the commission recommends (1) that the Imperial contract prices, less a reduction of 6½d per lb (freezing charges), be fixed as the maximum wholesale prices for meat in Brisbane, Sydney, Melbourne, Perth (including Fremantle), Hobart, and Launceston, such prices to include delivery by wholesaler, whereas in Sydney and Melbourne that is the custom of the trade. In Adelaide the maximum wholesale price for beef to be a farthing per lb higher than in the other cities named, the maximum wholesale prices for mutton and lamb to be the same as in those cities; (2) that the prices so fixed be used as a basis for fixing the price on the hoof of cattle, sheep, and lambs in the centres where there is no wholesale meat trade. In those centres an official declaration should be made of the maximum weights upon which the bidding is to be based.

(8) No action seems necessary with regard to retail prices, which (the evidence shows) will conform to wholesale prices.

An addendum to the report deals with "market manipulation in Sydney." This reads:—"It has been pointed out that in its former reports the commission dealt with the question of fixed prices for meat, on grounds independent of the manipulation of the Sydney market alluded to in report No 4. What the commission reported under that head was relevant to the fourth specific question in the Prime Minister's original request, viz., whether ruling prices were due to combination or manipulation of markets. It is not relevant to the present re-inquiry, but in fairness to parties who either were or deemed themselves to be implicated in certain strictures in that report, full opportunity was given to such parties to deal with the statements in question. In reporting on the combination of interests controlled by Mr. T. A. Field, a mistake due to resemblance of names occurred as to the participation in that combination of what is described "as the interests of Oldham." The firm of Oldham and Wheeler now operating in Sydney is wholly unconnected with the earlier business of the late Mr George Oldham, which did no work with Mr. Field. The conclusion that the Field combine totalled about one-fourth of the total slaughtering of cattle in 1915-1917, though based on figures which included erroneously the slaughterings under the name of "Oldham," would yet appear to have been an under-estimate of this influence. When the pool was formed its members made an estimate of the capital each member ought to contribute, based on the usual proportion of his trade to the total number of slaughterings, and the Field interests were then appraised at 31 per cent of the total. It was not suggested that any other carcase butchers than those named in the report worked in conjunction with Mr. Field, and the disclaimers of other carcase butchers, such as the Colonial Wholesale Meat Export Company and of the Riverstone Meat Company, were unnecessary, though perfectly true. The practices noted as to "shoving the market along" and as to "cloaking the names of the real sellers at the yards" were disproved by more trustworthy evidence than that which was left uncontradicted in the last inquiry. It appears, too, that the bidding of owners when their own cattle are put up does not take place to any substantial extent. Evidence was given that a practice formerly universal of "punching the market" when a new buyer comes in still exists, though not to anything like the same degree as formerly. For example, in 1915 the Government of New South Wales had a buyer in the market for the purpose of trial workings at the new abattoirs. There was an impression that the Government intended to inaugurate butchering generally as a State service. The market reports show that prices at once rose. With regard to the pool, which is not to be confused with the Field combination, it should also be mentioned that the stock owned by Mr. Field actually yarded during the pool were not important in number. This leaves untouched the general question of the advantage to Mr. Field of high prices for stock, since, as a pastoralist, he owns, and is interested in, a large number of stations. On the pool's operations the fresh fact was elicited that the pool acted under a Government guarantee of 7½ per cent on the capital put in by the carcase butchers for the purchase of stock and the conduct of the business. Its accounts show that expenditure and returns about balance, but as the pool was in existence for two months only a return at a rate equivalent to 45 per cent. per annum on capital should have enabled the members to sell cheaper instead of dearer meat than before the pool was formed. Subject to these corrections in details, the general view expressed in report No. 4, that the Sydney meat market is needlessly high, in part as a result of the control of powerful interests, remains unaffected.

HOMES FOR SOLDIERS.

Members of the committee of the Balmain branch of the Voluntary Workers' Association were introduced to the Minister for Works yesterday afternoon by Mr. Quirk, M.L.A. The object of the deputation was to ask for the Minister's support for a request that the two acres of land at Rozelle on which the State Joinery Works stood before the fire which destroyed them should be made available to the local committee for the purpose of building homes for returned incapacitated soldiers.

The Minister, Mr. Ball, said the site was quite unsuitable for the purpose. If the committee came to the Government with a more suitable site, together with proper plans of the cottages they proposed to erect, he would be pleased to give the matter very favourable attention. He would endeavour to get assistance for the committee to purchase such land.

STATE ECONOMY.

WHERE VICTORIA IS NOT FOLLOWED.

Upon his return to the Treasury yesterday, after his recent indisposition, the Premier made some observations in reply to recent criticisms on the question of economising in the administration of State affairs.

Mr. Holman said that some comparison had been made between the States of Victoria and New South Wales in this respect. He did not wish to suggest that the comparison had been made by members of the Victorian Government, or even by Victorian interests. It had been made by critics of the State Government at home, and the question had been asked, "Why can't New South Wales govern itself as economically as its southern neighbour?"

"It is therefore worth while to point out what are some of the economies the Victorian Government has made in which New South Wales has refused to follow," said the Premier. "In the first place, the New South Wales Government has made up the difference between the military and civil pay of all its Public servants who have volunteered for active service at the front. This has been done to encourage recruiting. The Victorian Government has not done that. This item alone costs us between £100,000 and £150,000 per annum. It could be stopped immediately. But should it be stopped? Or can it be said that the example to employers generally which the Government has sought to set is dear at this annual price?

"The Victorian Government has also made some economies by withholding from its Public servants the annual increments legitimately earned under the law," he went on. "In New South Wales we have regarded these increments as legitimately acquired under the law, and, while we have postponed their payment in the cases of the more highly-paid branches of the service, we have not interfered in the cases of salaries under £325 per annum. There are many other points of difference between us which my absence from my office during the last day or two has prevented my looking into, but these are sample differences to go on with.

"It is absolutely no use our critics telling us that 'economy' is needed unless they are prepared to take the responsibility of indicating the direction in which economy is to be applied," added Mr. Holman. "We have no desire to find fault with the methods adopted by our sister State. The members of the Victorian Government would certainly be the last to offer any criticism of the methods that prevail in New South Wales. Every Government is entitled to decide for itself whether it shall make certain administrative economies its first care. In New South Wales we think more about recruiting than we do about the expenditure involved."

MR. BEEBY AND THE UNIONS

RECRUITING AGREEMENT EXPLAINED.

NEWCASTLE, Thursday.

At the Trades Hall this afternoon the Minister for Labour and Industry (Mr. Beeby) met representatives of a large number of unions, and discussed their grievances concerning victimisation, re-registration, breaches of awards, and encouragement of bogus unions. The president of the Colliery Employees' Federation (Mr. J. M. Baddeley) presided.

Mr. Beeby, in his reply, promised carefully to consider their representations, and communicate his decision to them. So far as the victimisation question was concerned, however, he said that he would remind them that whilst the strike was on the strikers had been given a week to reconsider their position, and told that if they returned during that period their positions would be available to them. Up to that time the Government had not filled a single place of strikers permanently; but at the end they gave a definite undertaking to those who came to their assistance that they would be permanently employed. That was a solemn obligation incurred by the Government in time of great stress, and they must honour it. It was absurd for the unions to complain that they had been hurt.

In a rough-and-tumble contest there were bound to be many bruises given by either side, but he agreed that as the whole trouble had finished every effort should be made to heal the bruises. It was useless for unions to expect to be placed in the same position as before the strike. It was certainly true that at the Governor-General's conference an undertaking was given by the Government to do certain things, but that undertaking was given on the assumption that unions would assist in the matter of recruiting, and help to create an atmosphere of general harmony. That undertaking was made on the basis of mutuality, yet what did they find? "Are you keeping your part of the compact?" he added. "Am I to ignore the debate of the Sydney Trades and Labour Council? The Government is willing to do its best to heal up strike differences, and will deal specially with the matter as soon as Parliament assembles. No deregistered union will be re-registered which will come into conflict with the new unions. This is the only way to carry out the undertaking fairly."

Mr. Beeby emphasised that those unions which did not come into conflict with new unions would be re-registered as soon as possible, but it would be necessary for other deregistered unions to come to some acceptable arrangement with new unions, and he promised provision would be made for easy restoration of their former privileges.

Referring to the question of victimisation, the Minister said he had heard a lot concerning this grievance, but what about those unions who were expelling their members because they had worked during the strike? That must be stopped. He again reminded them that the agreement arrived at at the Governor-General's conference was a mutual one. They should honour their part of it just the same as the Government. Mr. Beeby concluded with a passionate appeal for co-operation of unionists. He referred to the seriousness of the war, and urged the necessity of mutually arranging the whole trouble. The need of Empire required their co-operation, and he asked for it in order that we might present a united front to the enemy.

THE OCCASIONAL DRINKER.

CASE STATED BY SIR THOS. ANDERSON STUART.

Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, Sydney University, strongly urged prohibition of the sale of alcoholic liquors during the currency of the war, at a large meeting held at Strathfield last night, under the auspices of the Burwood No-License League. Mr. H. C. Kent presided.

"I am not a teetotaller," Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart said. "After the declaration of war came the Follow-the-King Movement, and I came to the conclusion that what was good enough for the King was good enough for me. But the war dragged on for a couple of years, and I am not now an absolute teetotaller. I use alcohol in a medicinal and restricted manner, but I have never used it other than at meal times, and certainly never when a man has asked me to have a drop. I have felt I would rather have knocked him down. I use it just as a good many other decent citizens use it. And that is where the value of war-time prohibition comes in—it is that men like me must make a sacrifice." Six o'clock closing, he continued, had changed the aspect of the street; there were now no such scenes as formerly disgusted decent people. With his experience to guide him he did not care what restrictions were proposed; he had always supported them.

"Would I vote for prohibition?" the speaker continued. "Yes, I would, every time. You will say: 'If it does you good and you enjoy it, why prohibit it?' I say I will give it up because it is the law of sacrifice. So long as the majority say with me it is to be the law of the land that I become a teetotaller for the rest of my days I shall vote for prohibition.

"Your whole-hogger who never takes anything at all would make no sacrifice; those who have taken liquor and had to give it up because it did not agree with them would be making no sacrifice. It is the men who take liquor occasionally, but give it up, to whom the merit attaches. The teetotallers do not want addresses on the subject. I am addressing myself to people who, like myself, occasionally take a drop for one reason or another, but who, for the good of others, are prepared to become teetotallers for their lives. I advise them to follow my example, and vote for any step that will stop the use and, therefore, the abuse of alcoholic liquors. I am willing to give it up, and I advise every man and woman to do the same." (Applause.)

The meeting was also addressed by the Rev. S. J. Hoban, of the Central Methodist Mission, and, on the motion of the chairman, the following resolution was agreed to unanimously:—"That this meeting of Strathfield residents emphatically declares itself in favour of war-time prohibition, and urges serious consideration of the matter by the Federal Cabinet, in the interests of national efficiency and the welfare of returned soldiers."

EXPORT OF SALT.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

The exportation of salt from the Commonwealth has been prohibited, unless the consent of the Minister for Customs is obtained.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION INQUIRY.

EVIDENCE OF STAMPING.

Mr. A. B. Piddington, K.C., Chairman of the Interstate Commission, yesterday continued his investigation into the prices of boots and shoes in Sydney.

Mr. Frank A. Coombs, instructor in tanning at the Technical College, said the tannages of Australia were suitable for producing sole leather equal to other countries; he did not say that in every case tanners used the best material. Leather could, however, be worked to the best results. Australia possessed materials which would give much better results for wet weather, such as prevailed in France. Tests showed him that black pine, which was plentiful in New South Wales, gave good water-resisting results. Leather was prepared here for a dry climate, and it naturally did not suit such as was experienced in France. He had always felt that a certain amount of hard grease put into the leather would help matters by improving the wearing quality and resistance to water. A certain proportion of glucose, by absorbing moisture, made the sole pliable, and, perhaps, improved the wearing quality. But grease would accomplish both purposes more efficiently, and be a protection against the absorption of too much water. In such cases the future exports of those tanners should be prohibited until the analysis was complete.

Mrs. Liddell, president of the Women's Horticultural and Home Industries Society, Ltd., explained that the function of the body was to assist women in co-operative buying. It comprised 320 members, chiefly soldiers' wives and widows. She attended to produce a pair of shoes purchased by a daughter of one of the members for 35/; five minutes after she put the shoe on the upper burst away.

Mr. Routley (secretary of the Manufacturers' Association) said the shoe had every appearance of being Austrian made; it was a ballroom shoe, and the breaking away appeared to be due to perishing. The upper was of satin, and not of leather.

Arthur McDonald, retired boot manufacturer, said he had never used fictitious names, but he had stamped boots with made in America, London, or Northampton, and got a readier sale for them. Nothing would safeguard the public but the manufacturer's name being stamped on the goods. He had himself made shoddy goods. This was necessary owing to the demand for cheap boots and shoes. The waste in buying cheap footwear ran into anything from £2,000,000 to £3,000,000 a year in New South Wales alone. The same waste went on in regard to tanning. Adulterants, like glucose, should not be allowed in the country.

Mr. John E. Mannix, importer, Pitt-street, said the shoes produced by Mrs. Liddell were made in Vienna, and were what were known as covered shoes; glue was used in fixing the covering, and it was there that the separation would occur, if at all. Customers were told that these were "covered" shoes.

Mildred Zoeller, saleswoman, employed by J. E. Mannix, said, as far as she could recollect, she sold the shoes produced by Mrs. Liddell. She told the customer it was "covered." The cost was about 32/6.

Norman Sydney Howarth, manager for Joe Gardiner, Ltd., 839 George-street West, said the shoe produced by Mrs. Webb on Tuesday, for which she said she had paid 8/11, and which she had alleged had broken when first worn, was retailed at 5/11½. Had a complaint been made at the shop it would have been referred to him, and the trouble would have been immediately rectified with another pair of shoes. The aim of the firm was completely to satisfy customers.

Joe Gardiner, recalled, said the cost of producing the shoes was 5/6 per pair. Three years ago this brand was sold at 3/11½. It was impossible to sell absolutely reliable shoes for less than 10/; and the lower grades were made for the convenience of people who could not pay that amount.

ANZACS ON LEAVE.

Mr. George Fitzpatrick yesterday supplied the following statement:—"The Millions Club has been active in assisting to make the stay of the special furlough men as pleasant as possible. When the fact became known that a number of the original Anzacs, all of whom had over 1000 days of service in the actual firing line without a single mark against their military career, were friendless in Sydney, Mr. Arthur Rickard, president of the club, instructed the secretary, Mr. George Fitzpatrick, to leave nothing undone to make the furlough as happy as could be. Representations were made to Mr. Holman, who immediately ordered that free passes for trams and trains should be made available, and also that Ministerial cars should be utilised for motor trips. Applications to the managers of the various theatres and picture shows met with an instant response. The 'Blue Gums' arranged to entertain the men.

"A personal letter of welcome was forwarded to each of the men from the president of the club, asking them to place themselves in communication with the secretary without delay. The men will also be the guests of the club while on furlough. A letter, containing all the facts concerning them, was also sent to the Mayors of the various municipalities in which they resided.

"It is not possible to insure men who are already at the front, but Mr. Rickard contended it would be unjust to allow these men to return to the line uninsured. He asked the privilege to be the first citizen to insure one of the original Anzacs, and he has arranged for the insurance of Sergeant A. R. Townsend, M.M. In order that some permanent organisation may be created to care for the men who are returning on furlough by a number of the incoming boats, Mr. Rickard invites all persons desirous of helping these men and showing a practical appreciation of the services which have been rendered to register their names as a nucleus of the Anzac Entertainment Committee, with the secretary of the Millions Club, Elizabeth-street, Sydney; or telephone to Mr. Fitzpatrick, 10234 or 8335.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

Senator Pearce to-day referred to the Anzacs who were on leave in Australia, and said that the Defence Department did not know they were returning to Australia until they arrived. Apparently they were not on leave in the ordinary way, but were put on board the vessel for duty. The general officer commanding oversea required a number of men, and, without any reference to the Defence Department, he selected some of the Anzacs. He not only sent them to Australia, but said that they could have a certain amount of leave. It was not a general custom, and only happened on this particular vessel. All leave had now been stopped by the authorities oversea. He would have an inquiry made into the statement that the New South Wales Military District was not informed when the men left Victoria for Sydney.

Whilst the Government had not been able to arrange for the return of large numbers at a time of members of the A.I.F. who had been on service continuously since 1914, General Birdwood had now arranged to utilise, when occasion offered, the services of a limited number of such members on transports proceeding to Australia, so as to enable them to visit their families. The period of leave had been fixed at two months in Australia on full pay. In making a selection of those to be so returned, preference was being given to those whose family affairs were in such circumstances as to be the cause of distress or hardship to the families of the men. Other circumstances being equal, preference was given to married men. Necessarily the numbers who could be granted this leave were limited owing to the few transports in use. It should be clearly understood that the selection of men was made by the authorities abroad, who fully appreciated the type of case to whom it was desirable to extend the privilege, and no pressure could be exercised from Australia.

In connection with comments in the Press concerning the treatment of Anzacs of the first batch on this leave, these men arrived a considerable time before any information was received as to the conditions under which they were being returned. The only information was that given on the ship's nominal roll that they were on "duty."

Immediately on receipt of correspondence from abroad, which showed that they were returned on duty so as to enable them to have two months' leave in Australia, instructions were issued that the leave would commence from the date of disembarkation, and would be on full pay. It would thus be seen that, owing to the delay in the arrival of the correspondence due to the irregularity of mails, the department was placed in the position of receiving the men before the details as to their disposal arrived. As all future batches would be under the same conditions, the department would be in a position to make suitable arrangements for dealing with them immediately they arrived.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Thursday.

The Legislative Council sat till midnight passing the Income Assessment and Income Tax Bills through committee. The only amendment of moment made was the raising from £20 to £26 the deduction allowed from chargeable income for each child under 16.

The Wheat Marketing Bill, in accordance with the report of the select committee, was amended by deleting the clause referring to operations after 1917-18, and passed on the understanding that the Government appoint a Royal Commission to report upon the whole wheat scheme.

FEDERAL SESSION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives to-day the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Watt, informed Mr. Higgs (Q.) that the Government did not propose to introduce industrial legislation during the present sitting.

In reply to Mr. Pigott (N.S.W.), Mr. Watt said that no contracts had yet been let in Victoria for the construction of wheat silos, but the matter was still receiving the consideration of the Government. In New South Wales erection was being proceeded with in the wheat districts, and in some cases silos were practically complete.

Mr. Watt told Mr. Archibald (S.A.) that the Government had been pressing the British authorities frequently by cable to give greater facilities for the export of leather.

Mr. Massey Green informed Mr. Laird Smith (Tas.) that the Interstate Commission recommended the fixation of the price of meat, but the Government did not consider the recommendation was capable of practical operation. The Government was giving attention to an alternative course.

The Speaker announced that he had received a report from the Sergeant-at-Arms in regard to the telegram addressed to Mr. Considine (N.S.W.), which had been the subject of debate yesterday. The attendant had admitted having received the telegram from the telegraph messenger. The assistant having satisfied himself that Mr. Considine was not about the House, pinned it to his letter-box. About half an hour later the same messenger stated that he had to get that telegram back, and the attendant returned the telegram to him. The attendant thought that the telegram was wanted in order that some error might be corrected. The Speaker added that letters or telegrams should not be returned, unless instructions had been given to attendants that telegrams should be delivered personally to members as soon as possible.

Mr. Considine (N.S.W.) complained about the high cost of living at Broken Hill.

Mr. Finlayson (Q.) spoke in favour of immigration, and said the Labour party had never opposed European immigration.

Mr. Fenton (Vic.) said that oil development work in the Commonwealth was infinitesimal, considering the large amount of money spent and the time that had elapsed since the work started. It would be worth while for the Government to spend £500,000 in order that it might obtain old supplies, which would help industrial pursuits and the Navy.

The Minister for Home and Territories, Mr. Glynn, said he was submitting to the Cabinet the question of supporting the present methods in existence at Papua. There was a possibility of private enterprise investigating the Papuan oil fields if permission were given. The Government was seriously considering the best and quickest means of completing the exploitation of the fields.

THE SENATE.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the Senate to-day, the War Loan Bill, to authorise the raising and expenditure of £80,000,000, was read a first time.

BIBLE SOCIETY.

CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

A vast audience gathered in the Town Hall last night to hear something of the year's work of the N.S.W. Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the wealth of figures reflecting so eloquently the wide scope and fruitfulness of it. Since the war began over seven million free copies of the Scriptures in 72 different languages have been distributed among the warring nations. The N.S.W. Auxiliary has presented a handsomely-bound New Testament to every New South Wales soldier. Founded in 1804, the parent society has circulated over 284 million copies of the Scriptures, and has published them in 504 languages. It maintains 1200 colporteurs and 800 Bible women in various parts of the world. It has printed the Scriptures in 35 languages in Braille type for the blind. This year, owing to the increase in charges for paper and printing and binding, it is faced with an extra expenditure of over £30,000. These were some of the facts unfolded to the audience. Hymns, and anthems, and the rousing "Hallelujah Chorus" by the combined choirs of the Presbyterian churches, with Mr. Joseph Bradley as conductor, and Miss Alice Bryant as organist, provided an admirable musical setting for what proved an inspiring religious festival.

His Excellency the Governor, who presided, was met by a guard of honour of voluntary aid detachments. Proceedings opened with the National Anthem and the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past."

His Excellency said he had studied the great religious systems of the world, but he had emerged from the study triumphant and unscathed, for there was no book in the world but the Bible. (Applause.) Our Bible had spread to every corner of the world. (Applause.) We had not only the Bible as our model in our consciences and thoughts, but even our very words were modelled on the glorious interpretation of the Word of God—the finest, the most inspiring, yet simple diction in the world. If ever he attempted to write or to speak, he generally consulted the Bible. (Applause.) In this moment, when our thoughts were bowed down with care, we felt that our God, who had been our help in ages past, would still remain our sure defence in the time of trouble. (Applause.)

Chaplain W. M'Kenzie, M.C., spoke of the magnificent and widespread work of the society among millions of men who were fighting for the well-being of the world, and gave instances of the change which had been wrought in men at Gallipoli through the influence of the Bible—men who, in their dying hours, had made their declarations of faith. In this dark hour of our history, we should get back to the Bible, and make our lives more in conformity with the living examples set by those who were fighting and enduring for us in the trenches.

Mr. C. E. Bowen, general secretary of the N.S.W. Auxiliary of the society, instanced the widespread activities of the organisation, which, he said, was just 100 years old. (Applause.) He could not say much that was good of the Germans, but from Berlin, which, prior to the war, was the second largest printing establishment of the society, copies of the Bible in about 42 languages were being sent out to help and bless the people of Europe. It was feared, at the beginning of the war, that the precious stereo blocks would be commandeered and melted for bullets. But God could look after His own Word even in stereo blocks, and these were being used for the right purpose throughout Central Europe. (Applause.)

Chaplain J. H. Chaseling, speaking of his experiences abroad, said that while the Germans had committed almost every atrocity imaginable, they had their counter-part in the Turks, for the Turk was one of the most unspeakable brutes on the face of the earth.

BOY SCOUTS' APPEAL.

From the general secretary of the Boy Scouts' Association (Mr. Raymond J. C. Cowan), at the Royal Naval House, Grosvenor-street, an appeal has been made for £1000 to carry on the good work of the association. Widespread as its organisation is, the association has only one paid official. The instruction is imparted to the boys voluntarily by men, ineligible, it is stated, for service abroad, but who realise the responsibility of preparing young Australia to line up to the traditions associated with the word "Anzac."

The work of the association has a deal to commend it. It expresses itself both sentimentally and tangibly—tangibly, to take only three heads into which the work is divided, in the sound and healthy training of the individual character in resourcefulness, in observation, and in self-reliance—splendid assets in themselves for a boy embarking upon the sea of life—in the training also in handicrafts or hobbies which may help the boy to make his way in life; and in service for the State, such as in the form of fire-fighting, ambulance, life-saving, and other collective public duties by the troops. Of these duties chiefly and voluntarily rendered, at all times and all hours, the public have an intimate knowledge. Above all, the organisation's basic virtue is its tremendous power as a builder of character. To this, chiefly, it is dedicate. To quote the words of one who has seen, first hand, the value of the Boy Scouts' organisation:—

"Its aim is to make the rising generation good citizens. We avoid," he added, "military training because the Government has instituted the universal training scheme for boys. We do not interfere with the boy's religion, whatever form it may be, though we encourage him to practise the religion that he professes."

Responses to the appeal, if forwarded to the general secretary, will be acknowledged.

A.L.P. CONFERENCE.

The 28th annual conference of the New South Wales A.L.P. will be opened by the president (Mr. W. H. Lambert) at 2.30 on Saturday afternoon next, at the Sydney Trades Hall.

The agenda paper is a lengthy one. Leaders in the Labour movement are of the opinion that in view of the war the conference may be obliged to confine its attention to matters arising out of the war, and to arrive at a settlement of Labour's attitude in regard thereto.

KILTED BATTALIONS.

SYDNEY SCOTS' REQUEST.

"CONSULT GENERAL BIRDWOOD."

The Australia Scots Brigade Association, whose offer of a Scottish brigade for the A.I.F. has been rejected by the Minister for Defence, suggests an appeal to General Birdwood.

"Should the Government feel a difficulty in coming to a conclusion in favour of granting our request," the association says, "we venture to suggest that a cablegram be sent to General Sir William Birdwood:—

"Can you find place for four kilted infantry battalions in your organisation? If so, what battalion numbers (new or old) would you suggest for same?"

"Our request—the association continues—is for the formation, as adjunct to the A.I.F., of a brigade with three variations of uniform:—

"Tam-o'-shanter or Balmoral khaki, instead of service cap.

"Khaki tartan kilt and sporran, and khaki tartan breeches; consequent jacket alterations, and khaki hose-tops."

The suggestion is the culminating point of a reply to Senator Pearce's statement of the military difficulties in the way of "the kilties."

The Acting Prime Minister has forwarded to the committee of the A.S.B. Association the following statement, furnished by the Minister for Defence:—

The chief point raised at the deputation which waited upon you in Sydney in connection with the proposed formation of Scottish reinforcement units was that the kilt should be adopted for such units.

Although certain battalions have been withdrawn, and the men from them sent to reinforce other battalions in the field—it must not be assumed that the withdrawn battalions have been entirely broken up, or that they have disappeared. The nucleus have been withdrawn to the base, and, as reinforcements arrive, they will again be built up. Thus, assuming that the 4th Battalion has been withdrawn, when reinforcements arrive they will be drafted to this battalion, and again bring it up to strength, when it will again take its place in the field. If the proposal of the deputation were adopted, the reinforcements would be wearing the kilt and the nucleus the present service dress. Such a system could obviously not be adopted.

On the other hand, if the nucleus were also to be issued with the kilt, then this battalion would lose its identity, and become a Scottish battalion, the old 4th Battalion entirely—disappearing. It would from that time be a new battalion.

I am strongly opposed to this. I contend that the traditions which these battalions have won should be maintained and cherished, and the continuity of their identity and history maintained.

The case of Canada is not parallel; when the war broke out Canada already had her Scottish kilted regiments, and she is maintaining these.

Surely, if anything will appeal to an Australian, whether he is of Scottish, Irish, Welsh, or English descent, the glorious traditions of Gallipoli, Pozieres, Bullecourt, Moquet Farm, Palestine, or Brettoneaux should do so. It is to reinforce and maintain the battalions that have won these glorious names and traditions for Australian arms that we are appealing and I am strongly opposed to any action that will replace the identity of the battalions that have made them, by other battalions, and traditions, no matter how worthy in themselves they may be. I cannot believe that any person of Scottish birth will allow this matter to prevent his doing his duty to his country. Rather do I believe that such a one will be proud to be associated with the units and even with the uniform worn by these splendid units.

I repeat, that we honour the natural and just pride of those of Scottish descent in the glorious traditions of the Scottish regiments and dress, and again make the offer that, if a Scottish reinforcement unit be formed, its members will be trained together; sent away together so far as shipping facilities will allow; and so far as military exigencies at the battle front will allow, will be drafted to the same units as reinforcements.

Traversing the Ministerial statement, the reply says that the committee will yield to none in its admiration of the glorious deeds of Australian units at Gallipoli and elsewhere —units in which the personnel was composed of men born not only in Australia, but in Scotland and elsewhere in the British Isles and Empire. The appeal to such a splendid record having proved insufficient, the committee urges that it should be supplemented by a further appeal to the great military traditions and sentiment of Scotland.

The committee complains that the Minister has missed the point of its reference to other Dominions, which was to illustrate the feasibility of mingling Scottish units with the Canadian and South African forces, as well as sections of the British Army. It questions the objection as coming from a politician who was the chief instrument in the destruction of the N.S.W. and Victorian Scottish kilted regiments in 1912.

The nucleus battalions to which the Minister has referred must continue (it is argued) in respect of one unit or another, for, if some units of the "defunct" category should at times be built up again with reinforcements into fighting units, it can only be done by reducing present fighting units to the "defunct" category, and so the five-divisional organisation will always be about 12 or 15 battalions short; thus there will be always opportunity for brigading Scottish battalions with the A.I.F., just as American units were brigaded with the British.

If the Australian Scots clothe a skeleton brigade or battalion with flesh and blood, and make it live again as a fighting unit, its old number need not be altered. "Its early history would remain," says the committee, "to be supplemented, we should hope, by the equally distinguished record of its Scottish personnel. In any unit the record gained by a personnel which has passed away accrues to the benefit of a subsequent new personnel which has not earned it. . . . Should it be considered important not to transfer existing numbers, the Scottish battalions might be allotted fresh numbers, say, 61-64, though the effective number of infantry battalions in the A.I.F. might still be only about 50."

It is contended that half-battalions might be sent away as they were trained and equipped, or even single companies, to be collected later on into a full brigade on the other side, and it is submitted that there could be no objection, in the meantime, at least, to include a full kilted battalion in a brigade of the A.I.F.

Further uses for the whole brigade, when complete, are outlined. It could replace a brigade which had ceased to exist. It could relieve a brigade of the present establishment which might have suffered so severely as to require withdrawal temporarily, and this would help to keep up the fighting condition of the troops as a whole.

Alternatively, arriving as supernumerary to the existing establishment, it could be absorbed in lieu of another brigade, seasoned, and fit to be specially trained as storm-troops, an honourable position which successive brigades could occupy, having been relieved in line either by the Scottish Brigade or each other.

In accordance with the Acting Prime Minister's promise, the Cabinet is to reconsider the matter in the light of the further representations.

"ENEMY ORIGIN" INQUIRY.

A WRONG IMPRESSION.

The Commissioner, Mr. Barnett, states that amongst a section of the Commonwealth Civil Servants an impression has gained ground that the fact of having to appear before the commission of inquiry to investigate cases of supposed enemy origin implies a reflection upon the individual. This should not be so. Complaints against the retention in the Commonwealth Civil Service of persons of enemy parentage or origin became so numerous recently that the Federal Government appointed a Royal Commissioner to inquire into every case where an employee was reported or believed to be of enemy origin or descent, and any matters incidental thereto, and to make a recommendation, based on the evidence, as to his or her continuance in the service, or otherwise. It was felt that to allow officers to be the subject of complaints of which they had no knowledge would be undesirable and unfair. Hence the inquiry. The evidence against many of the employees is more or less remote, sometimes resting on nomenclature only, but the inquiry has necessarily to be exhaustive and comprehensive in order to accomplish its object. It should be, and, as a fact, has already been, welcomed by those officers who are desirous of dissipating, once for all, unfair and unjustifiable suspicions as to their parentage or descent.

DEATH OF MR. D. BERNARD.

The death on Sunday last, the 26th inst., of Mr. D. Bernard removes another well-known citizen from our midst. The deceased gentleman had for many years past carried on business in George-street as an art picture frame manufacturer, and later established in King-street the photographic business known as the Swiss Studios, finally erecting at 337 George-street Bernard-building, one of the tallest edifices in the city, comprising twelve floors. Prior to the funeral from his son's residence at Kensington on Monday a service was conducted by his friend, the Rev. C. H. Talbot, of the Presbyterian Church, Randwick, and the remains were thence conveyed to Rookwood, where they were interred in the Jewish portion of the cemetery, the service being rendered by another personal friend of the deceased, the Rev. P. Phillipstein. The attendance included Messrs. Henry Bernard (son), A. Palser (son-in-law), W. Palser (grandson), Hooper (Union Bank of Australia, Ltd.), Hamburger (B. Singer and Co.), Thompson (Kodak, Ltd.), C. McEwen, Dr. P. Mahoney, C. Newman, C. Newman, jun., F. C. Rigney, Neville Montagu, Frank Scott, Gordon, Marks, B. Fischer, Victor Cohen, J. Coben, A. J. Liddy, F. Rothwell, Lenz, L. Moss, W. E. Hawkins, Gourlay (Lewis, Thomas), P. Freedman (Newcastle representative), and Messrs. Meyers, Howard, White, Dewhurst, Hellyer, Smith, J. Young, McLennan (N. Jacobs and Co., Ltd.), together with a large number of Masonic brethren. The late Mr. Bernard was married twice, and he leaves his son, Mr. Henry Bernard, and married daughter (Mrs. A. Palser), and his widow surviving him.

WAR CASUALTIES.

Information has been received in Wellington that Driver Frank Watts, the eldest son of Mr. Matt. Watts, has died in France. He belonged to the 1st Division Ammunition Column, and was one of the first volunteers to leave Wellington, being one of the original Anzacs. He was 28 years old.

Private William G. Carney, of D Company, 34th Battalion, who died of wounds on April 8, 1918, at the age of 20 years, enlisted early in 1917, and left in May, 1917. He was a son of the late Mr. John Carney, well known in West Sydney and Mosman sporting circles, and of Mrs. Carney, of 42 Vista-street, Mosman. Private Carney was educated at the Mosman Commercial School. His eldest brother, Herbert J. Carney, is on active service with the Anzac Mounted Column in Palestine.

"CAR." THOUSAND BAND.

Captain Carmichael, M.C., announces that owing to the generosity of a Sydney lady, who does not wish her name to be disclosed, no further subscriptions are necessary for the purchase of band instruments.

Applications for positions in the band, accompanied by the name of the instrument the applicant can play, will be received up to Saturday, from men already in camp. It is not possible to consider applications from men who are not already in camp.

WAR CHEST REVIEW.

Containing some interesting illustrations and a fund of information, a smart little publication named the War Chest Review has made its first appearance, and will be issued monthly. It is to be the organ of the Citizens' War Chest Fund.

FRANCE'S DAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I should like to make it clear through the columns of your sympathetic journal that it is not intended to put any appeal for funds before the public of New South Wales on France's Day in July next. The need for further financial help for our great ally is, as must be apparent to any Australian who has studied the situation, of the most pressing character; but other important appeals have their due claim on the generosity of our people, and the French-Australian League, therefore, does not propose to conduct a second campaign for money until the beginning of next year. The experience of 1917 justifies the confidence that New South Wales will again respond wholeheartedly when the time comes. Meanwhile, subscribers have the satisfaction of knowing that under the personal supervision of Mdlle. Soubeiran and the distinguished French men and women who constitute our distributing committee in Paris, the money already placed at our disposal is being well and wisely spent in relieving the sufferings of the French victims of the war.

I am, etc.,

ANOTHER BANK COUNTER ROBBERY.

ABOUT £190 TAKEN.

A daring robbery was carried out yesterday afternoon at the William-street branch of the English, Scottish, and Australian Bank, situated at the corner of William and Duke streets, near Forbes-street.

It appears that shortly after 1 o'clock, and a few minutes after the manager of the branch had left for lunch, a smart, well-dressed young man about 20 years of age entered the office and presented a document to the teller, who was behind the counter; the teller, after examining the document, turned his back for a few moments. This apparently was the opportunity the visitor had been waiting for. He immediately jumped on to the counter, grabbed four or five bundles of notes from a partially closed rack, and bolted out into William-street.

The teller immediately gave chase, but four men, who, it was assumed, were confederates of the thief, jostled him. This gave the thief a good start, and turning into Duke-street, which runs from the bank right down to Woolloomooloo Bay and is crossed and recrossed by a number of winding roads and lanes, he managed to make good his escape.

The matter was immediately reported to the police, and Inspector Walker, of the Criminal Investigation Department, took charge of the case.

In his hurry to get away the thief dropped about £300 in notes at the door of the bank, and these were recovered.

It was impossible last night to ascertain the exact amount of money stolen, but it is understood that it amounts to about £190.

MR. HUGHES IN AMERICA.

NEW YORK, May 29.

President Wilson received in audience Mr. W. M. Hughes, Prime Minister of the Commonwealth, at Washington.

ANTHRAX IN WOOL.

LONDON, May 29.

The Departmental Committee for the Prevention of Anthrax Infection in Wool has found it impracticable to disinfect bales without opening them. It recommends disinfection in a solution of formaldehyde, after washing in hot, soapy water for dissolving blood-spots containing anthrax spores. The estimated cost is between .544 and .834 of a penny per lb.

DANCER'S LIBEL SUIT.

LONDON, May 29.

During the trial of Mr. Pemberton Billing, M.P., for alleged libel against Miss Maud Allan, the dancer, a sensation was caused when Mr. Billing, despite the protest of the prosecuting counsel that the question was cruel, asked Miss Allan whether her brother, named William Durrant, was executed at San Francisco for the murder of two young girls in a church belfry. Miss Allan admitted that this was a fact. Mr. Billing, in justification of the question, said he would prove that the brother's vice was hereditary.

The statement alleged to have been libellous was contained in a paragraph in Mr. Billing's newspaper, "Vigilante," referring to a private performance by Miss Maud Allan of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," a license for the public performance of which was refused by the Lord Chamberlain.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Only the extreme outside of the Randwick course proper was in use for fast work yesterday morning. The going was good, but the distance out from the inner rails accounts for the slow times against the watch. In a run over six furlongs, which occupied 1m 22s, Baltic Sea badly beat San Thome, and Poitrine sparred smartly. Kedbourn and Black Earl accounted for seven furlongs in 1m 38s, and Mountwood did six in 1m 24½s. Duke Hugo slipped over half a mile in 54s, and Silent Way was not fully extended to cover nine furlongs in 2m 10s. March On easily ran six furlongs in 1m 25s, and the steeplechaser, Lord Cecil, travelled a mile in 1m 51s. Fleurant sported over a few furlongs, and Leucosia galloped five furlongs in 1m 9s. Bunlong and Montauk ran a mile in 1m 53s, and Selanora galloped about a mile. Prince Kendal and Princess Clara were in 1m 9s running five furlongs, and the last four of five furlongs were left behind in 54s, by Sir Paddington and Palmitic. At the finish of a mile, run in 1m 49s, Promised Land was two lengths in front of Secret Service, and Airly badly beat New Guinea over six furlongs in 1m 23s, while Knightlark ran half a mile in 55½s. Marella did five furlongs in 1m 6½s, and Old Mungindi put in a strong working gallop. Arch Marella ran seven furlongs in 1m 38s, with plenty in hand, and Palmister did his usual short spurt. Ballet Girl ran six furlongs in 1m 25s; while Garibaldi galloped about a mile. Coxcomb sprinted half a mile in 54s, and Zentello five furlongs in 1m 8s. On the previous afternoon Mugawilah (Carlile) showed to advantage in a school over the steeplechase course proper, with T.V. (Davis), Raxlawn (Flanagan), and Master Hawthorn (Norman). Mulgawilah jumped well, but Master Hawthorn refused after a few fences. Lor Don Q., with Flanagan up, jumped three of the schooling fences well.

The following race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.:—Tullamore Jockey Club (June 5), Tooloom Picnic Race Club (June 6), and Bowraville Jockey Club (June 24).

D.S. (Hurstville).—The totalisator, on the second day of the Newcastle Cup meeting, was on a 10/ basis; consequently, you should receive £3 for the £1 invested on Chlorolume.

A.E.M. (Haymarket).—We do not know; write to the secretary of the club.

BRITISH WAR RISK INSURANCE SCHEME.

Messrs. William Haughton and Co. report having received the following cable from London yesterday:—

"War risk insurances cabled to-day and until further instructed must be—Invoice cost, plus charges, not more than 10 per cent. profit added.

"The letter, giving preliminary or final particulars and basis valuation must be posted to our London office before the steamer sails. If preliminary, the definite particulars must be posted immediately they are ascertained. Insurers must confirm declarations in writing, giving details."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Electric Light and Power Supply Corporation, Limited, was held yesterday, the chairman of the company (Mr. Charles Oliver, C.M.G.) presiding. The balance-sheet and report, particulars of which have already appeared, were adopted, and a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum for the half-year ended April 30 was declared. Sir A. J. Gould was re-elected as director, and Messrs. Stewart, Simpson, and Co. were re-elected as auditors.

Henry Jones Co-operative, Limited, has declared the usual interim dividend of /9 per share (7½ per cent. per annum).

INCOME TAXES.

LONDON FINANCIAL CABLES.

THE ZINC CORPORATION.

LONDON, May 29.

The Zinc Corporation for the year ended December 31 shows a credit to profit and loss of £51,125. A sum of £15,000 is carried to the reserve for wasting assets, and £7120 is carried forward.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

LONDON, May 28.

The war news quietened the Stock Exchange, but gilt-edged securities are steady. Quotations were:—Australian Mercantile L. and F. Co. 4 per cent. debentures, £68/10/; City Bank of Sydney 4 per cent. debentures, £100; Dalgety and Co., Ltd., shares, £9/5/, ex div.; ditto, 4 per cent. debentures, £68/17/6; Goldsbrough, Mort 5 per cent. debentures, £77/15.

[The above appeared in yesterday's late edition.]

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

An active business was done yesterday in the oil market in turpentine and rosin. The latter was quoted by cable from America at a little over £31 c.i.f. and e., which would mean a landed cost of over £32/10/. Immediate buying set in, and before the end of the day 300 barrels had changed hands. G grade up to £30 per a ton, and N grade up to £31 net a ton. Buying in turpentine was also active, the sale of upwards of 900 cases being negotiated, latest sales being at 5/9. Distributing, 6/10 was asked for Pinetree and 6/ for Pratt's. Linseed oil was variously quoted, some houses adhering to the price agreed upon with the manufacturer, 6/8 for single cases: but the majority asking from 7/6 to 8/. Parcels were unobtainable. Castor oil sold in half-cases at 11/, and in drums at 11/6 per gallon. Only small lots were obtainable. Australian white-lead sold at 74/ to 75/ for small quantities in cwt packages, and American at 75/. A little English was still obtainable at the fixed price of 88/.

Japanese bluestone had sales at £68 a ton.

Grocery lines were quiet at the rates ruling early in the week. Some changes were made in miscellaneous lines. Blue boiling peas were advanced to 19/ per bushel. Starch in 1lb packets sold at 27/ a case, and in half-pounds at 28/, desiccated coconuts in half-pound containers, 6/3 a dozen. Seeds were without alteration. Pepper sold at 1/7 for pure white ground in 7lb bags, and 1/5 for black. Cornflour had a good inquiry at 4½d to 5½d, according to brand. Tapioca sold at 35/ for pearl and 34/ for seed.

A small parcel of woolpacks was procured yesterday at 7/2. Otherwise jute lines were quiet.

A copy of "Prices Orders—New South Wales," proclaimed under the War Precautions (Prices) Regulations, as at May 31, 1918, is to hand.

DARLING HARBOUR RAILWAY HOURS.

The Sydney Chamber of Commerce has been advised by the Railway Commissioners that they are prepared to extend the hours for the acceptance of goods at Darling Island to 5.30 p.m. on week days, and to extend the hours for the receipt of heavy goods at Darling Harbour to 1 p.m. on week days. This arrangement will be as a trial for three months from June 1.

LINSEED OIL.

It was expected that ere to-day the Commonwealth Government would have made an announcement regarding linseed oil—what were its intentions regarding price-fixing, and whether freight space would be available to bring linseed from India. There is no word yet, outside what the Government may have. If any freight being available, and with the diminishing stocks of linseed on spot it is probable that the oil works will be compelled to close down in the near future unless relief comes. If it should come about oil will be delivered for about two months after the closing down. The event would have far-reaching effects. The whitelead works depend upon the oil works for the completion of their product, so do the varnish factories and the waterproofing establishments. If there is no oil and whitelead there will be no painting done. The painters will be idle when supplies have altogether run out. A conservative estimate of the number of men who would be affected is 5000.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN BUTTER.

Butter is to be advanced another 4/8 per cwt on Tuesday next. That will make the wholesale price of choicest brands delivered in boxes 160/8 per cwt. The announcement caused a considerable stir in "the street." Many grocers endeavoured to "cover" next week's requirements at the current quotation of 156/ delivered. So far the Federal price fixing authorities have not given any reason for granting this fresh increase in quotations.

Stocks of cheese were light, and prices were very firm at the proclaimed levels. Bacon was fairly plentiful. There was no change in eggs.

Quotations were:—

Eggs.—Hen, new laid, 2/ to 2/2; Northern Rivers, 1/9; South Coast and railways, 1/9 to 1/10; duck, new laid, 2/; case, 1/9 per dozen.

Tomatoes.—4/ to 7/ per half-bushel case.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP.

MARKET LOWER.

There was a penning yesterday at Homebush of 36,391 sheep, from 180 owners. Most of the sheep-breeding stations were represented in the offering, and the quality of the sheep was good. There was a fair sprinkling of prime merinos and crossbreds, but the average pennings comprised useful trade and plain sorts. Most of the sheep carried fairly heavy woolly skins, but there were a few shorn sheep to be seen here and there. Some of the consignments were fairly heavy. One line reached nearly 2000, another totalled over 1030, and there were one or two lots of 900 each. The majority of the consignments, however, were in drafts of from a truck of 90 to 500 and 600. The attendance of buyers was quite up to the average, all branches of the trade being present. Competition was dull, and the market was generally lower for all classes, except for extra prime heavy merinos and crossbreds. These were in good demand. Towards lunch time there was a slight revival, the market becoming more buoyant; but the improvement did not last, and the sales finished much on a par with the conditions existing at the opening—flat and generally lower. There was a fall of anything from 1/ to 2/, and in places more. The pride of the market was several lines offered by Messrs. Wilkinson and Lavender. The executors of J. McGaw, at Whitton, took first place. For them the firm sold 579 merino wethers, which made to 55/10, and averaged 52/7; also 88 cross wethers, which were sold at 51/10 each, and 245 cross ewes that made 49/7 each. M. Robinson, of Wyalong, had 312 cross wethers, which sold to 51/7, and averaged 50/3; also 60 merino wethers, which realised 48/ each. F. Firth, of Warren, had 59 cross wethers, which sold to 44/4, and averaged 43/5. On behalf of McNickle Bros., of Harefield, Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin sold 167 cross wethers, which made to 50/1, and averaged 45/6. The largest line of sheep from one owner was 1215 merino wethers from Jas. McLeish, of Coonamble. These made to 38/2, and averaged 35/3.

Among the principal sales were the following:—From Sir William Brown, of Coonamble, xbd w to 34/8; from Western agents, at Crabbon, xbd e to 33/8; from W. O'Neill, of Collarenebri, xbd h to 41/7; from Mrs. E. O'Neill, of Collarenebri, xbd e to 35/1; from H. Bennett, of Coolamon, xbd w to 40/5; from M. Curtis, of Coolamon, xbd w to 45/4; from Mercadool Station, at Brambi, w to 42/6; from Crossman and Evans, of Tareoon, w to 44/3; from Nall Bros., of Merriwa, xbd w to 34/11; from McNickle Bros., of Harefield, xbd w to 50/1; from F. G. Boothman, of Canowindra, xbd h to 33/5; from S. T. Tout, of Young, xbd w to 41/7; from Western agents, xbd w to 38/11; from S. K. Bolden, of Woodstock, xbd w to 44/10; from R. W. Isaacs, of Coonamble, xbd the to 39/10; from Cosgrove Bros., of Umeralla, xbd w to 36/9; from J. Freebairn, of Greenthorpe, xbd w to 44/3; from J. O. Dart, of Caragabal, w to 35/9; from executors of J. McGaw, of Whitton, w to 55/10, xb w at 51/10, xb e at 49/7; from F. Firth, of Warren, xb w to 44/4; from M. Robinson, of Wyalong, xb w to 51/7, xb w at 48/; from Jas. McLeish, xb w to 42/10, and w to 38/2; from executors of W. Crowley, of Brewarrina, w to 43/7, and xb w to 45/; from Jas. McCallum, of The Forest, xb w to 44/1; from J. Rawsthorne, of Condobolin, xb e to 38/4; from W. Reynolds and Son, of Tarago, xb w to 39/; from E. Wenham, of Collarenebri, w to 34/11; from estate of late P. Barry, of Trangie, w to 34/; from J. Ticehurst, of Coonamble, w to 37/; from P. J. Furner, of Coolamon, xb w to 44/11; from A. G. Phillips and Co., of Delungra, w to 38/6; from P. McBorie, of The Rock, xb w to 42/4; from R. F. G. Strang, of Gerah, w to 36/10; from J. E. Stewart, of Cathundral, xb w h to 33/1; from J. Patrick, of Armatree, xb e to 32/10; from southern agents, xb w h to 37/11; from Gordon Bros., of Newbridge, xb w to 35/3; from P. J. Ryan, of Coonamble, xb e to 32/6; from O. E. Friend, of Coonamble, xb w to 35/1; from John McMaster, of Quirindi, w to 37/7; from Ward Bros., of Nyngan, w to 34/7; from J. B. Chamberlain, of Walcett, xb w to 43/4, and w to 40/10; from Tullamore Station, at Tullamore, xb w to 41/4; from J. Miller, w to 35/7; from Forge and Son, of Tamworth, xb h to 37/10; from D. E. McGrath, of Crab'oon, w to 35/6 and xb w to 37/8; from Edgerol Station, at Edgeroi, xb w to 37/11; from W. H. Mackay, of Cryon, w to 42/7; from C. T. Maslin, of Grenfell, xb w to 42/11; from T. A. Russ, of Albert, xb e to 41/7.

LAMBS.

There was a fairly large supply of lambs, but the most of these were of a poor quality. The prime sorts were in good demand, and sold well. A pen of 31 cross lambs from W. H. Evans, of Millthorpe, made 35/6 each. Another pen of 7? cross ewe lambs from C. McClure, at The Rock, realised to 33/6. Those from J. Freebairn, at Greenethorpe, sold to 33/1. A pen of 80 cross lambs from W. J. Weir, of Narrandera, made to 31/7, and averaged 29/3, while another pen of 89 cross lambs from G. Hain, of Cooma, sold to 32/8, and averaged 30/6.

CATTLE.

IRREGULAR AND CHEAPER.

The cattle yarded numbered 2466. It was a heavy yarding, but the quality was good. The consignments were mostly made up of good medium to light weight trade cattle and plain sorts, but there was also a fair sprinkling of heavy bullocks and prime cows. The number of owners represented in the offering was 127, and most parts of the State were to be found on the consignment notes. Buyers attended from the metropolis and the mountain and coastal districts, and restockers and others were also present. The market was irregular, and at early sales was about 10s to 15s lower than last day. It did not improve, and towards the close became from 15/ to 30/ lower. The best line of bullocks offered was 18, from Bandheet station at Gravesend. They were sold by Maiden Bros., to £24/5/ each, with an average of £22/10/. The largest line of bullocks was 54, from the Buttabone Pastoral Company. One or two of these made up to £25, but the average of the line was under £20.

Among the principal sales were the following:—From G. C. Brown, of Attunga, 34 bullocks to £18/11/, avg £17/17/4; from Reid Bros., of Willow Tree, 19 bullocks to £19/12/, avg £18/12/10; from J. F. Dowling, of Dungog, 20 steers to £18/17/, avg £18/8/6; from F. Reynolds, of Paterson, 20 bullocks to £19/10/, avg £19/3/6; from H. C. Taylor, of Scone, 39 bullocks to £19/5/, avg £18/3/; from Bangheet station, at Gravesend, 18 bullocks, to £24/5/, avg £22/10/; from C. L. Hume, of Boorowa, 20 bullocks and steers to £21/3/, avg £18/5/6; from R. K. Dampster, of Greenthorpe, 8 bullocks, avg £20/8/6; from A. B. Moore, of Narellan, 7 bullocks, £20/12/, avg £20/6/2; from F. Fitzgerald, of Tongy, 30 bullocks to £19/4/, avg £18/6/.

MONDAY SALES.

Owing to Monday being a holiday, there will be no sales at Homebush yards on that date.

STATION PRODUCE SALES.

The Sydney Wool-selling Brokers' Association reports:—

Tallow.—At yesterday's auctions, 317 casks were catalogued, as against 380 casks at the previous sales. A steady inquiry was met with, and good clearances were effected at a practically unchanged level of prices. Quotations: Prime butchers' mixed, £41/15/ to £42 per ton; exceptional lines to £43/5/; good, £41 to £41/10/; medium, £40 to £40/15/; inferior, £37/10/ to £39/10/; broken package, £33 to £36.

Hair, Bones and Sundries.—Supplies were small. Horsehair met a rather quiet market, and prices were a shade easier. Best round and flat shank bones, thighs, buttocks, and shins were again in very slack demand, while hoofs and sinews were not represented. Hides were in request at about late rates. Quotations: Horsehair to /21 per lb, cowhair to /15, cow stumps to /6, round shank bones to £14/10/ per ton, flat shank bones to £[illegible], mixed shank bones to £10, thigh bones to £26/10/, clods to £8/10/, buttocks to £21, shin bones to £[illegible], white hoofs to £25, black hoofs to £21, striped hoofs to £23, mixed hoofs to £21, sinews to £16/15/, hidepieces to £30, pizzles to £[illegible], muzzles to £11/10/, knuckles to £6/10/, scrolls to £10/15/.

Bark.—A brisk demand prevails and any consignments coming to hand are being readily absorbed at the following level of values. Quotations: Best, £9/10/ to £10/10/ per ton; medium, £8 to £9; light £6 to £7/10/; inferior, £4 to £5/10/.

WAR-TIME PROHIBITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As there is an impression abroad that the Australian National Prohibition League is opposed to war-time prohibition and other restrictive measures, will you permit me to state in a few words what the attitude of that body is on the matter. More than three years ago the league memorialised the Federal Government and appealed to the anti-liquor organisations of Australia in the interests of war-time prohibition; and there cannot be a doubt that if the Churches and temperance organisations had taken the same action as was taken in other countries, Australia to-day would have been as "dry" as Canada is. The league believes in prohibition not merely for the war period, but for all time. It supports war-time prohibition, however, as it supported 6 o'clock closing, and supports anti-shouting and other restrictive measures, not because it thinks those proposals will materially reduce liquor consumption, but because they help a little in the direction of national sobriety.

May I add that even after the war is over there will be tremendous problems to face, and that we could face those problems much easier if the heavy burden of the liquor traffic was lifted from our shoulders.

I am, etc., G. D. CLARK,
May 30. State Sec., A.N.P. League.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

Under high pressure influences, though of rather weak character, fine weather has been maintained over the greater part of Australia. The only exceptions were those areas in which, due to inducement given to northward surge of the Antarctic disturbance, light rainfall resulted. In New South Wales the regions affected were south of the Murrumbidgee and the south-eastern corner. In Victoria and Tasmania the rain was fairly generally distributed, but scattered in tropical parts, too, monsoonal activity was slightly in evidence, and a good deal of cloud formed, and an isolated fall of 25 points occurred at Urandangie. The "high" shows some expansion southward since Wednesday, its influence is still weak in southern districts of New South Wales. Consequently the presence of the Antarctic disturbance still over southern Victoria and Tasmania should be associated with further light rain at scattered places south of the Murrumbidgee and in the SE. corner of our State, and a likelihood of snow near Kiandra. With fairly steep gradients (i.e., congestion of the isobars) over the Southern Ocean, squally westerly winds are indicated eastward from the Leeuwin, with rough seas. The weather in coasts and northern parts of New South Wales should be fine generally, with mild day and cold night temperatures; frosts and fogs in eastern districts.

Ocean Forecast.—Rough around Tasmania, fresh to strong around Leeuwin; elsewhere smooth to moderate.

MINING.

A quieter, but somewhat stronger, tone marked opening operations in mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Business was on very restricted lines. Gold and copper concerns were practically lifeless. Deeps rallied to 15/10½. Among Barriers, "Hills" recovered 1/ to 68/3, but reacted to 67/9, while British and Norths were each 3d firmer. Tin stocks were irregular. Kampong opened 6d lower at 49/6, and hardened to 49/9. Carpathia recovered to 13/ for the paid, and 13/3 for the contributing shares. Mammoths were firmer also, closing at 9/7½.

KING'S BIRTHDAY ARRANGEMENTS.

The following arrangements will be observed in the Postmaster-General's Department on Monday:—

At the General Post Office, the delivery, registration, and parcel post offices will be open 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. The money order office (Post Office-chambers, 14[illegible] Pitt-street), and the postage stamps sale office will be closed all day. Postage stamps will be obtainable at the telegraph office (George-street front). Private boxes will be available as usual. Any person desirous of obtaining access to his private letter-box between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. should apply to the constable on duty in the colonnade, or to the clerk in charge of the telegraph receiving room. The country mails usually despatched in the afternoon and evening, also the coastwise, interstate, New Zealand, Fiji and foreign mails, will close at 10 a.m. The first delivery only (8 a.m.) will be made by postmen. The chief telegraph office will be open as on ordinary days.

The following branch offices, Castlereagh-street, Exchange, Parliament House, Queen Victoria Buildings, Queen's-square, and Stock Exchange, will be closed all day. Other branch offices in the city of Sydney, suburban, and country offices will be open for all postal and telegraph business, except money order and savings bank business, from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. The first delivery only will be made by postmen, provided such delivery is usually made not later than 10 a.m.

The iron pillars and other receivers in the city will be cleared in the afternoon, and at night only. In the metropolitan suburbs they will be cleared only in the ordinary hours in the morning, or alternatively in the evening, as indicated on the pillars and receivers.

FOREST HOME ARRIVES.

A sight reminiscent of old sailing days was witnessed yesterday morning when the American schooner Forest Home sailed with flowing sails through the Heads before a favouring breeze. Two tugs had been awaiting the visitor's arrival off the Heads, but the skipper, Captain Larsen, signalled that he would not require their services. When the vessel was off Bradley's Head a tug took her in hand, and towed her to an anchorage in Johnstone's Bay. The Forest Home brought a cargo of 900,000 feet of timber.

THE LOTTIE BENNETT.

It has been decided that the American schooner Lottie Bennett, now in port at Melbourne, discharging timber from Astoria, will proceed to Levuka to load copra for San Francisco.

SENTENCED FOR IMPOSITION.

At the Central Police Court yesterday Bernard Esson, 24, a traveller, was sentenced by Mr. Love, S.M., to six months' imprisonment on each of three charges of imposition. The sentence on the second charge was ordered to be cumulative on the first. It was stated that Esson has represented himself as coming from the Church of England Men's Society and had collected money.

VICTIMS OF MINES.

The Premier has received a further letter from the Commonwealth Government respecting the disappearance of the steamers Port Kembla and Cumberland. The Acting Prime Minister now definitely writes that the loss of these vessels can be attributed to mines.

BOOT MANUFACTURERS AND BRANDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—May I ask a space to make clear to your readers that in speaking before the Interstate Commission on behalf of the National Economy Association on the question of brands on boots, I made it quite plain that our members do not condemn Australian made boots and shoes. Nor do we consider them of low quality; on the contrary, as I stated before the commission three years ago at our meetings, and from time to time since, we have made displays of Australian footwear in order to educate our members into the high quality and good style of the article our fellow citizens make. The association advocates the clear branding of the manufacturer's name, the materials used, and the country of origin, and claims that it is not fair either to the public or the boot industry that the retailer should control the sale of Australian boots by controlling the brands or prohibiting them. I was the only speaker for the association.

The witness following me proved the contention by referring to a large window display of good-quality footwear, which she concluded were best imported because they looked good, although she admitted that they bore no deceptive cards or brands.

My committee is prepared to make any educational display of footwear before our members at any time. We are sure they would be much edified by some of the brands now in use, which are much against the manufacturer's expressed wish. I refer you to Mr. Alfred Lee's evidence. So far no retailer has given a satisfactory answer as to why he orders false brands or why he refuses to sell boots branded "Made in Australia."

I am, etc., RUTH BEALE,
Hon. Sec., National Economy Association.

CITY.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY FOR MANUFACTURERS.

RIGHT AT THE RAILWAY STATION.

THAT MAGNIFICENT PROPERTY KNOWN AS THE WESLEY CHURCH AND SCHOOL HALL, TOGETHER WITH 5 SHOPS AND MACHINERY STORE ADJOINING.

The Total Frontage of the Property is 314 feet (about) to REGENT-STREET by varying depths through to the Railway Line.

THE CHURCH, a Massive Building of stone, with slate roof, and large Basement, occupies a frontage of 112 feet. The Building is in splendid order and condition.

THE SCHOOL HALL is a Modern Building of Brick, cemented, with iron roof, and very easily convertible for Factory purposes. It occupies 57 feet of the frontage.

THE FIVE SHOPS are built on 83 feet of the ground, and let on a Building Lease, returning £43 per annum, and having about 12 years to run. Arrangements can be made for any purchaser to secure the balance of this Lease.

THE MACHINERY STORE AND YARD occupy a frontage of 61 feet 6 inches, and are let on a weekly tenancy.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to exaggerate the value of this opportunity to secure suitable Factory Premises and Sites right in the heart of the Manufacturing District, and immediately adjacent to the Railway.

IF NOT SOLD IN ONE LINE, THE PROPERTY WILL BE OFFERED IN FOUR LOTS.

A CARETAKER will be on the premises from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily to afford inspection to intending purchasers.

FULL PARTICULARS OF TITLE and any further information will be promptly provided by the Auctioneers, and Leaflet giving full particulars of the dimensions of the various buildings will be forwarded on application.

Two-thirds of the Purchase Price can remain for three years at 6 per cent.

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

MY EXTRACTIONS are guaranteed painless with every tooth. It doesn't matter what condition your teeth are in—they may be broken or badly abscessed—I guarantee that you won't feel a single twinge of pain. I back up the guarantee by offering £5 to anyone who feels any pain. I invite you to do as a gentleman did the other day. He asked me to put "that £5 note" that I was always advertising about, on the table. Frankly he didn't believe I could extract a tooth without him feeling it. I put the £5 note on the table, then extracted his teeth, after which he said:—"I'm not George Washington; but, really, I can't claim your money." I am quite willing to do the same for anyone else who is doubtful. With my special method of extracting teeth there is no pricking of the gums, and no need to come back a second time, as with some other methods. It is perfectly safe for all ages, and for those with weak hearts or women in a delicate condition. Fillings are painless, too, in my Surgeries. I have a wonderful appliance, which enables me to absolutely banish pain while drilling and filling the most tender teeth.

Consult me to-day—my expert advice is free. Terms can be arranged. Open till 6 p.m. Daily (Sats. included). Until 9 p.m. Friday, Half-holiday Wednesday. DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES "Does It Best." Orchard's Corner, George-street, opp. Railway.

NEURITIS CAUSED AGONY.

Mr. G. Dinsdale, ... writes:—"I was a great sufferer. Pain most severe in the shoulders, arm, and thumb. The Acid had crystallised in the parts, and prevented the blood from circulating. I also suffered from Mental Depression, insomnia, weak stomach, and the bowels were irregular. On rising in the morning I felt weary and tired. I was recommended to try Dr. Parker's Great Indian Rheumatic Remedy, and am thankful I did so; I got relief from the first bottle, so I persevered with it, and am pleased to testify to the truly wonderful merits of the Medicine, and will be glad to recommend it to other sufferers."

Obtainable Anthony Hordern, W. H. Soul, Pattinson. FREE SAMPLE (Postage) 3d, to F. PARKER, 29 Daking House (Railway).

Rheumatic Remedy 4/6, Rheumatic Liniment 2/6. Send postal note to-day, and the Medicine will be sent by return post.
